S. 525. Sub-sec. (8), adjournment on application under the section—contd.

—for the purpose of a 526. (8) Cr. P. C. the hearing or trial must be taken to include all the proceedings taken to determine a case, and the first step in the hearing of a Session trial is the reading and explaining of the charge to the accused 1911 M. W. N. 311; 10 Ind. C. 390; 12 Cr. L. J. 271, 29 C. 211, not approved.

—refusal of the M. to stay proceedings on the filing of a telegram from the petitioner's Vakil intimating the order of the H. C. is injurious and is a ground for transfer. 16 C. W. N. 1031; 17 Ind. C. 78; 13 Cr. L. J. 766; 11 C. W. N. 507, 5 C. W. N. 110, 2 C. W. N. 498, but see 17 C. W. N. 536.

—the expression "inquiry or trial" in cl. (8) refers to those inquiries or trials which are specially stated in the earlier portion of the Code and the hearing of an application for transfer is not an inquiry within the meaning of the clause. 97 I. C. 974; 27 Cr. L. J. 1214; 5 Pat. 229 1927 Pat. 59.

—a trial is over before the judgment is pronounced, so where the intention to apply for transfer was intimated after arguments were over and before the judgment was pronounced and the M. refused to adjourn the case this did not contravene the sub-sec (8) 52 M. 355; 118 I. C. 274; 56 M. L. J. 216 1929 M. W. N. 60; 30 Cr. L. J. 908

—a "case" under cl. (8) includes a proceeding under s. 145 Cr. P. C. but as the clause directs that the application to the trial Court is to be made either by the Public Prosecutor or the complainant or the accused, it would seem that the parties in s. 145 proceedings cannot have the advantage of the clause. So a M. is not bound to postpone a proceeding under a 145 because the party stated that they had desire to move the H. C. for transfer. 8 Pat. L. T. 716; 1927 Pat. 351; 6 Pat. 553; 106 I. C. 219; 28 Cr. L. J. 1035; 34 C. W. N. 59; 50 C. L. J. 331; 1929 Cal. 778; 1929 Cr. C. 522.

Procedure and jurisdiction

—the law does not require that an application for postponement of a case under this sec. or an application to the H. C. for transfer should be made within any particular period before the date fixed for hearing. It requires only that the party should notify to the court before the commencement of the hearing his intention to make an application for transfer of the case. 29 C. 211; 6 C. W. N. 251, 8 C. W. Fact.

—the only sense in which in interpreting the Statute the word "fact" can be understood is that given by the definition. 7 A. 385 F. B.

Relevant.

—relevant means admissible 3 C. W. N. 263 (note).

Evidence.

—it is so defined for the purpose of the Act only. 4 C. 492 and it is exhaustive for that purpose. 2 L. B. R. 272.

—statement of accused is not evidence within this definition. L. B. R. (1893-1900) 368.

—the word "evidence" signifies only the instruments i. e. witnesses and documents by means of which relevant facts are brought before the court. 1930 Nsg. 242. 1930 Cr. C 818 : 26 N. L. R 229.

—it is most unfortunate that the Indian Law of Evidence does not permit an accused person to depose in support of his defence. 1929 Pat. 145 : 116 I. C. 756 : 30 Cr. L. J. 646

Proved.

—the s. embodies a sound rule of common sense. 6 C. W. N. N. 495, 1 C. W. N. 682, 22 C. 391.

—where there is sufficient evidence of a fact, it is no objection to its proof that more evidence might have been adduced. 9 M. L. A. 506 : 1 W. R. 25 P. C. .

—the meaning of the expression "proved" as defined in s. 3 is in no way affected by the incidence of the burden of proof. 50 C. 318

—"proved" means that it is so probable that a person should, as reasonable man, act upon it; a fact need not be proved with anything

—witnesses may be examined other witnesses under ss. 5, 11 and their credit. 11 B. H. 167.

S. 6 (Relevancy of facts forming part of same transaction).

—where a prisoner, a booking clerk committed criminal breach of trust in respect of certain sums, his confessions before the Traffic Manager would be admissible under this s. 9 B. H. C. 358.

—a certain witness in a case of abduction gave evidence that he had seen 3 women who were sleeping in the same bari as complainant and his wife that night, searching for something at dusk. These women were not examined as witnesses and when the witness was asked as to what reply one of the women gave and the witness was not able to answer and the Sessions Judge excluded such evidence, he'd that the search could not be treated as part of the same transaction as the abduction at night and that ss. 6, 8, 9 were not applicable. 42 C. L. J. 111; 90 I. C. 433; 26 C. L. J. 1553. 1926 Cal. 105.

—where in a rape case the defence relied on a statement by the mother of the girl to the effect that the girl had told her that she was bitten by a leech, the statement was not substantive evidence though it could be used to corroborate or contradict the statement made by the girl. 50 C. L. J. 524; 1930 Cal. 132; 1930 Cr. C. 132.

—statement of a woman raped is not admissible in evidence under s. 6 but may be admissible in evidence as complaint under s. 8. 4 Lab. L. J. 491.

—where a woman raped made a statement to her relative shortly after and committed suicide three days after, her statement was not admissible under this sec. 1930 M. W. N. 702.

—hearsay evidence of the statement of a bystander as to an occurrence would be admissible as a part of the res gestae only if it was made at the time the transaction was taking place or so shortly before or after it as to form the same transaction. 4 C. W. N. 265; 5 Cr. L. J. 71, 10 C. 302 Dist.

—statement by injured person to a third person in the presence of the accused who did not deny it, is admissible. 10 C. 302.

S. 6. (Relevancy of facts forming part of same transaction)—contd.

—this S. gives statutory recognition to a well known rule of law, that facts which form part of the res gestæ are admissible in evidence. 34 P. R. Cr. 1914: 27 Ind. C. 664: 16 Cr. L. J. 184.

—where the offence under trial is filing a false complaint, what happened of the complaint at the subsequent Police investigation, forms no part of res gestæ. 48 M. 640: 86 I. C. 209: 1925 M. W. N. 68.

—the statement of a person not examined as a witness through the mouth of a witness cannot be evidence as part of the res gestæ, if the statement though made at the time of the occurrence was not in respect of the occurrence itself but with regard to an event which took place a year ago, which was altogether a different event. Nor would it be admissible under s. 8 as it would be purely hearsay evidence. 42 C. L. J. 504: 1926 Cal. 139: 92 I. C. 442: 52 C. 272.

S. 7. (Facts which are occasion, cause or effect of facts in issue).

S. 10. (Things said or done by conspirator.)

—the application of the sec. is strictly conditional upon there being a reasonable ground to believe that two or more persons have conspired to commit an offence. 37 C. 467 : 14 C. W. N. 1114 : 10 C. L. J. 453 7 Ind. C. 359 : 30 C. 983 : 1930 M. W. N. 1249

—a conspiracy consists not merely in the intention of two or more but in the agreement of two or more to do an unlawful act or to do a lawful act by unlawful means. So long as such a design rests in intention only it is not indictable. 37 C. 467 : 14 C. W. N. 1114 : 10 C. L. J. 453 : 7 I. C. 359.

—although to establish the charge of conspiracy there must be agreement there need not be proof of direct meeting or combination, nor need the parties be brought into each other's presence : the agreement may be inferred from circumstances raising a presumption of a common concerted plan to carry out the unlawful design. above case.

—where several persons are charged with the same conspiracy it is a legal impossibility that some should be found guilty of one conspiracy and some of the other. Association for music, gymnastic exercises and lathi play amongst young men living in the same village or attending the same school are ordinary incidents of village or school life and could hardly with propriety be proved as forming elements in any alleged scheme of conspiracy to wage war against the King-Emperor and all the more so, when they are shown to have been accompanied by a complete absence of secrecy and rather by a courting of publicity. 38 C. 559; 15 C. W. N. 593.

—where the accused is charged with an offence of conspiracy and acts of cheating in presence of conspiracy, the charge is not bad and it is open to the prosecution to prove such acts in order that from these the existence of the conspiracy may be proved. 35 C. L. J. 279, 25 M. 61 Dist

—the criminality of the conspiracy is distinct from and independent of the criminality of the overt acts. When persons have been taken into custody and are in a condition which makes it impossible for them to act in aid or in furtherance of the conspiracy, the acts of persons who were members of the conspiracy and who are still free to act in presence thereof, are not admissible as against them; these acts can no longer be deemed as the acts of co-conspirators. 15 C. L. J. 517.

—when no conspiracy was proved the self-incriminating statement of one was not admissible against the other accused. 18 C. L. J. 590; 14 Cr. L. J. 586; 21 Ind. C. 378.

—the object of this sec. is to ensure that one person shall not be made liable for the acts of another until some bond in the nature of agency has been established between them and the acts of another which it is proposed to attribute vicariously to the person charged must be in furtherance of the common design and after such design was entertained 1929 Pat. 145; 116 I. C. 756; 30 Cr. L. J. 646, F. B.

—this sec. is intended to make evidence communication between different conspirators while the conspiracy is going on, with reference to the carrying out of the conspiracy. 38 C. 169; 15 C. W. N. 25; 11 Cr. L. J. 710; 8 Ind. C. 770.

—when two persons conspire together to commit an offence each is regarded as being the agent of another and just as the principal is liable for the acts of the agent so each conspirator is liable for the acts of his fellow-conspirator done in furtherance of the common intention. 31 Bom. L. R. 515.

—a letter of a person cannot be admissible in evidence without proving that he is a party to the conspiracy. 25 Bom. L. R. 248.

—where there is reasonable ground to believe that two or more persons have conspired together to commit an offence, anything said, done or written by any one of such persons in reference to their common intention may be proved both for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy as also for showing that any such person was a party to it. 28 C. 797.

—a conspiracy within this sec. contemplates something more than the joint act of two or more persons to commit an offence. 4 C. W. N. 528, 25 B. 230.

—what has to be established under this sec. to make a document, found in the possession of one of several persons accused of conspiracy, admissible against the other accused, is that there is reasonable ground to believe in the existence of conspiracy amongst such persons. It is not necessary for this purpose to establish by independent evidence that they are conspirators. 16 C. W. N. 1105; 16 Ind. C. 257.

—where a letter written by a stranger to a conspirator is not shown to have been received or replied to or otherwise acted upon by the latter it is not sufficient to establish the former's connection with the conspiracy so as to make his acts done in pursuance of the conspiracy, abovē case

—overt acts may properly be looked at as evidence of the existence of a concerted intention and in many cases it is only by means of overt acts that the existence of the conspiracy can be detected. But the criminality of the conspiracy is independent of the criminality of the overt act abovē case.

—statement of accused after arrest and not amounting to a confession is not admissible against a co-accused either under s. 10 or s. 30 but only against himself 46 C. 700 30 C. L. J. 255 (38 C. 169, 15 C. L. J. 517) fol.

S. 47. (Opinions as to handwriting when relevant)—contd.

—evidence of expert is not admissible if the proved or admitted handwriting is not compared in open court. 39 C. 606: 16 C. W. N. 812.

—in order to prove the handwriting or signature of another person one must show that he is acquainted with the handwriting or signature of that person. 4 Pat. 394: 1924 Pat. 787.

—person proving handwriting must prove his acquaintance with the handwriting to be proved. 92 I. C. 1034: 1925 Pat. 778: 7 Pat. L. T. 507.

—a court of law ought not in the absence of any evidence take upon itself the duty of comparing handwriting and pronounce judgment based merely on its own inspection. 78 I. C. 668 (C), 1923 Cal. 485.

—comparison of handwriting is hazardous and inconclusive proof and in the absence of expert evidence regarding the same should not ordinarily be the basis of decision. 29 C. W. N. 75: 1925 Cal. 145: 85 I. C. 525.

—the word "habitually" means "usually," "generally" or "according to custom." It does not refer to the frequency of the occasions but rather to the invariability of the practice. 27 Bom. L. R. 1031: 89 I. C. 1042: 1925 Bom. 429.

—when the witnesses depose in favour of a document, the court would not, although satisfied that the signature was not that of the alleged testator, declare the will to be a forgery in the absence of other corroborating evidence. 41 C. L. J. 300: 87 I. C. 534: 1925 Cal. 768.

—opinion of dead person cannot be proved save under s. 32. 1925 Cal. 116.

—the witness need not state in the first instance how he knows the handwriting; opposite party is to explore the sources of knowledge: 28 B. 58 p 62: 5 Bom. L. R. 663.

—evidence of mere similarity of handwriting is extremely weak in probative force, but when it is strongly supported by other facts, the judge should consider it. 13 W. R. 191, 64 I. C. 234, 66 I. C. 774.

—ordinary methods of proving handwriting are (1) by the admission of person concerned; (2) by calling the writer or one who saw it written or one who is qualified to express an opinion as to the handwriting under sec. 47: (3) by comparison of handwriting as provided by sec. 73: but the last mode is always hazardous and inconclusive. 37 C. 467: 14 C. W. N. 1114, 26 C. W. N. 113: 34 C. L. J. 373, 64 I. C. 234, 66 I. C. 773.

—evidence of previous act of dishonesty is admissible to prevent the accused to plead that the act under consideration was committed without a dishonest intention. 102 I. C. 492; 1927 Lah. 549; 28 Cr. L. J. 556; 28 Punj. L. R. 313.

—evidence of bad character is not admissible to prove that the accused were of such a disposition that they were likely to commit the crime, but there is no bar to adduce evidence which proves a motive for the crime or which is otherwise relevant. 93 I. C. 884; 27 Cr. L. J. 484; 1926 Pat. 232; 7 Pat. L. T. 396.

—where certain persons were accused under a. 400 I. P. O. the evidence of the commission of other offences than dacoity was only evidence of bad character and was inadmissible under sec. 54. 32 M. 179.

—s. 54 has no bearing whatever upon the question of the relevancy of previous conviction after an accused has been convicted of the offence charged and for the purpose of enhancing the sentence to be passed on him. 1929 Rang. 200; 29 Cr. L. J. 869; 111 I. C. 453 F. B.

—a man's guilt is to be established by proof of the facts alleged and not by proof of his character; such evidence might create a prejudice but not lead a step towards substantiation of guilt. 42 O. 957.

—where the judge in the Lower Court had stated that the general reputation of character enjoyed by the two identifiers of a party registering a will tended to throw a cloud of doubt on the transaction, it was held by the P. C. that such evidence of the general reputation of the character of those persons, who were both dead, ought not to have been admitted. 10 O. W. N. 522; 3 C. L. J. 349 P. C.

—in a case of damage for libel charging the plaintiff with seditious acts it was held that the deportation of the plaintiff was evidence as throwing light on the character of his agitation previous thereto and as thus affecting damages. 37 C. 760; 14 C. W. N. 713.

—before a man of past good character is adjudged guilty the evidence against him must be of an unimpeachable character. 1928 Lah. 647; 29 Cr. L. J. 740; 10 Lah. L. J. 262; 110 I. C. 676; 29 Punj. L. R. 703.

S. 68 (Proof of execution of document required to be attested).

—the amendment of the sec. by Act XXXI of 1926 being a provision of procedural law and not substantive law has retrospective effect to its operation 1929 Mad. 881: 57 M. L. J. 588: 53 M. 119.

—under the amendment of the section by the Amending Act XXXI of 1926 no examination of the attesting witness to prove the execution of a registered document, not being a will, is necessary unless its execution is specifically denied by the alleged executant. 104 I. C. 622. 1927 Pat. 403.

—the acknowledgment of execution before the Sub-Registrar and the signature of the Sub-Registrar below the endorsement on the bond amount to sufficient attestation under the amended definition in act XXVII of 1926, 105 I. C. 422

—this sec. does not apply to the Punjab and there is no law requiring the sale deed of the province to be attested. 1929 Lah. 1: 114 I. C. 62: 10 Leh. 447.

—this s. applies only to cases where an instrument required by law to be attested bears the necessary attestation. 30 M. 251: 17 M. L. J. 213.

—a document executed in England when it is required to be attested but which is not required to be attested under the Indian Law and which relates to property in India, may be proved by only proving the signature of the executant. 7 Pat. 520: 111 I. C. 57: 1928 Pat. 304.

—to attest is to bear witness to a fact, and it is not necessary that the attesting witness should sign his name personally. 33 C. 861: 4 C. L. J. 41.

—an attesting witness is a person in whose presence the instrument is executed; 'presence' means mental cognition of the act and physical contiguity; a party to a deed cannot be regarded as an attesting witness. 11 C. L. J. 563: 5 I. C. 539: 37 C. 526.

—attestation means that what is said to be attested, happened in the presence of the attesting witness. 7 C. W. N. 160, 30 M. L. J. 463: 60 I. C. 554.

—a mortgage-deed is attested by witnesses within the meaning of s. 59 Tr. P. Act, only when they are present at the time of execution. 31 M. 215: 18 M. L. J. 219: 3 M. L. T. 300.

S. 68. (Proof of execution of document required to be attested)—contd.

—when the mortgagor not being able to sign his own name mortgage-deed was signed by the scribe on behalf of the mortgagor, the scribe was not competent to attest his own signature as attesting witness. 46 C. 522; 23 C. —an attesting witness to a document is a witness in whose presence the document is executed. 34 C. L. J. 498; 49 C. 438.

—the writer may be an attesting witness. 48 C. 61.
when a scribe does not subscribe as a witness he is not an attesting witness. 20 C. W. N. 699 (Patna H. C. case). Contra, 5 C. W. N. 454, 204, 532.

—a person who saw the execution can be an attesting witness. 30 C. W. N. 585; 35 C. L. J. 409; 33 B. 44) Ref. (35 A. 458).

—person whose name was written by the scribe without a mark by the witness, is not an attesting witness. 38 A. 461.

—a document required by law to be attested cannot be admitted for legal purposes without being properly attested without objection its admissibility. 35 C. L. J. 473; 27 C. W. N. 1009; 33 B. 44) Ref. (35 A. 458).
L. J. 588.

—the mere fact that a document required to be attested was allowed to go at the trial without objection cannot take the place of proof of execution. 1917 Pat. 131; 101 I. C. 277; 8 Pat. L. T. 7.

—in the absence of death of witnesses, prima facie the presumption is that the mortgagor signed in the presence of the witnesses and that the latter subscribed in his presence. 38 C. L. J. 114.

—s. 68 is mandatory and is not controlled by s. 90. The mere fact that the only surviving attesting witness is considered to be hostile does not relieve the party from the duty of examining him as witness. Moreover all processes as mentioned in Or. 16 R. 10 C. P. C. must be exhausted; issuing summons and warrants only will not do. 31 C. W. N. 215; 98 I. C. 147; 1927 Cal. 102.

—where in a mortgage suit the only living attesting witness is summoned but he refuses and the plaintiff proceeds to prove the document by other evidence, the provisions of ss. 68 and 71 are complied with. 33 C. W. N. 248; 49 C. L. J. 16; 1929 Cal. 188; 116 I. C. 726.

—when all the attesting witnesses are dead the law would be satisfied by any evidence showing that the document was executed in the presence of two attesting witnesses. 14 L. W. 563; 23 M. 607.

the execution but the other witnesses whose names are preceded by the writer's name prove the execution, it may be fairly presumed that both signed as attesting witnesses. 7 C. W. N. 384.

—where a mortgage-bond which ought to be attested by two witnesses, was attested by three, proof by one of such witnesses is sufficient proof. 29 C. 355: 6 C. W. N. 345.

—a mortgage bond was attested but not signed and then it was executed but there was no fresh attesting witness, in a suit where the mortgagor admitted the bond but pleaded only discharge it was held that it was not a valid mortgage and there was no question of admission or estoppel. 45 C. L. J. 577: 105 I. C. 28.

—an account book is not a document which is required by law to be attested. 51 A. 864: 1930 All. 38: 1930 Cr. C. 59: 31 Cr. L. J. 356: 121 I. C. 819.

S. 69. (Proof where no attesting witness is found.)

—to apply this section it must be proved that no attesting witness can be found, so all the processes including arrest of the witness and attachment of his property must be exhausted. 110 I. C. 756: 1928 Pat. 356: 7 Pat. 312.

—in case of mortgagor being illiterate, if all the attesting witnesses die, the document cannot be proved by a person who knows the handwriting of the attesting witness. 25 A. 365.

—death of attesting witness must be satisfactorily proved. 13 Bur. L. T. 114: 61 I. C. 637.

—when one attester is dead and the other either denies or does not recollect execution, it can be proved by other evidence. 1 Pat. 154: 1922 P. 415.

—in case of will, when attesting witnesses deny to prove, it may be proved by other evidence. 20 C. W. N. 192.

—the requirements of s. 69 are sufficiently complied with by proof of the handwriting of the scribe and by the fact that some

S. 70. (Admission of execution by party to attested document.)

—s 70 relates to admission of a party in the course of trial of a suit. 27 C. 190.

—admission of representative of a party is not sufficient. 38 C. L. J. 114

—admission of execution but denial of attestation of a mortgage bond requires due proof of the document. 38 C. L. J. 114.

—no admission is effectual unless it amounts to an acknowledgment of the formal validity of the instrument. The execution means something more than mere signing by the party. It includes delivery and signing in the presence of witness. So where the mortgagor admits to have signed the mortgage deed but denies the presence of witnesses, attesting witness is required to prove the deed 27 C. W. N. 263 : 36 C. L. J. 373, contra. 24 Bom. L. R. 1296 ; 47 B 137.

—to be good signature attested by two witnesses within s. 59 T. P. Act, the persons signing as witnesses must be present at the execution of the instrument. Where such persons were not present at the execution of the deed but the pardanashin lady admitted that she had executed the mortgage deed, held that notwithstanding her admission the mortgage deed was void even as against her. The words of this sec. apply only to a document duly attested. 42 C. L. J. 148 : 30 C. W. N. 364 : 6 P. L. T. 575 : 1925 P. C. 203 : 89 I. C. 659 : 23 A. L. J. 815 : 49 M. L. J. 240 P. C.

—a markman can be attesting witness within the meaning of sec. 59 of the Tr. P. Act, and sec. 68 of the Ev. Act. 2 O. W. N. 603.

—attestation under sec. 59 of the Tr. P. Act cannot be the attestation of the admission of having signed the document. So a Registrar before whom the mortgagor acknowledges the execution of the deed, cannot be an attesting witness. 26 C. 78.

—'attestation' under sec. 59 of the Tr. P. Act, is the attestation of the execution of the document and not of the admission of execution. 26 C. 246; 3 C. W. N. 84; 27 C. 190.

—where the attesting witnesses signed their names before the mortgagor, the bond was invalid. 32 C. 729; 9 C. W. N. 697.

—the question of attestation is a question of fact. 26 C. 78.

—the term 'admission' in sec. 70 of the E. Act, relates only to the admission of party in the course of the trial of a suit, and not to attestation of a document by the admission of the executant. 27 C. 190 —'signing' means the writing of the name of a person which may convey a distinct idea to somebody else, whereas 'mark' is a mere symbol and does not convey any idea to a person who noticed it, often even to the maker of it. 25 C. 911; 2 C. W. N. 642.

—where a document, more than 30 years old, is free from suspicion of dishonesty, it may be admitted in evidence without proof. 18 W. R. 485, 1921 Pat. 49; 5 Pat. L. J. 563; 57 I. C. 786.

—the a. itself admits a presumption of the genuineness of a document 30 years old, if produced from legitimate custody. 5 Bom. L. R. 144

—what is proper custody is to be determined on the facts of the particular case. 126 I. C. 19.

—a private partition chitta purporting to be more than 30 years old was produced by the person who deposed that the Record Office had produced it in court, held that the presumption could not be raised as the chitta was not in the Collectorate before production nor did the proof establish that the Collectorate custody was proper custody within a. 90. 90 I. C. 722; 1926 Cal. 370.

—production of a will and an anumatipatra by the Collector of the District with whom the properties were placed on behalf of the Court of Wards after 54 years, gave rise to the presumption under this a. 4 Pat. 67; 1925 Pat. 442; 94 I. C. 814.

—the presumption under this section must always be applied with a good deal of caution. 31 C. W. N. 215; 98 I. C. 147; 1927 Cal. 102; 55 C. 210.

S. 90. (Presumption as to documents thirty years old)—contd.

—the rule under this s. as to proof of execution of documents thirty years old ought to be applied with special care and caution. 11 C. 539, 29 C. 740, 20 B. 1, 41 M. L. J. 310: 1921 M. W. N. 750: 61 I. C. 959.

—under this s. the court is not bound to presume the genuineness of a document 30 years old, it should exercise its discretion as to whether in the circumstances the presumption of genuineness should be applied to it. If it is not satisfied, it should call upon the party to produce evidence of its execution. 17 C. W. N. 108, 95 I. C. 261: 1926 All 537, 104 I. C. 219: 1927 Cal. 870, 2 C. L. J. 592, 31 Bom. L. R. 1279, but the discretion should not be arbitrarily exercised. 29 C. 740.

—the court cannot presume the correctness or genuineness of every statement made in the document, all that it can presume is that a document was executed by the person who purported to be the executant. 98 I. C. 1021: 1927 Cal. 229.

—the court may presume the genuineness of signature which authenticates a copy. 33 C. W. N. 578: 1929 P. C. 115: 52 M. 453: 1929 M. W. N. 553: 117 I. C. 507: 49 C. L. J. 566 P. C.

—there is no presumption under this sec. with regard to unsigned account not purporting to be in the handwriting of any particular person. 1930 Nag. 225: 124 I. C. 609, 33 M. L. J. 84 fol.

—when a document of great age creating miras tenure, cannot be proved for want of witness, it is necessary, in order to establish its authenticity, to show that it was accompanied by possession. 2 W. R. 22 P. C., but it is not necessary to go behind the possession of the present owner. 11 W. R. 35, P. C., 4 W. R. 73 P. C., 13 W. R. 109, 17 W. R. 34.

—effect of the presumption under this s. may be weakened by circumstances which tend to raise doubt as to its authenticity. 7 C. L. J. 615, 95 I. C. 261: 1926 All. 537.

—jama wahi baki papers of more than seventy years old is sufficient to raise the presumption of fixity of rent under s. 50 B. T. Act. 45 C. L. J. 129.

—in reckoning 30 years, not the date of filing but the date on which it is tendered in evidence, is to be considered. 5 C. L. R. 135, 1925 Mad. 184.

—presumption applies also to true copies coming from proper custody. 46 M. 92, 16 L. W. 839, 1922 M. W. N. 614: 31 M. L. T. 347: 16 L. W. 462, 32 M. L. T. 89, 1929 Oudh 483: 121 I. C. 273.

—the presumption does not go to the extent of holding that the documents were in fact executed by persons possessed of requisite authority. 27 C. W. N. 964.

S. 92. (Exclusion of evidence of oral agreement.)

—N. S. s. 92 is supplementary to s. 91. If the contract, grant or disposition has been reduced into writings, s. 91 says, no evidence shall be given of it, except the document itself, and this rule would be in vain, unless, as is said in s. 92, it was also forbidden to contradict, vary, add to, or subtract from its terms. Mark Ev. P. 73

—the distinction between ss. 91, 92 and ss. 93 to 99 is, that ss. 91 and 92 define the cases in which documents are exclusive evidence of the transactions which they embody, while ss. 93 to 99 deal with the interpretation of documents by oral evidence. The two subjects are so closely connected together, that they are not usually treated as distinct but they are so in fact. Step. Dig. 7th Ed. P. 192.

—the rule in s. 92 is taken almost verbatim from Taylor on evidence, including the exceptions, 6 C. 328. But the admissibility of oral evidence to vary the terms of a written document &c. is not governed by the English law but by this Act. 8 C. W. N. 101, 27 I. A. 58: 22 A. 149, P. C.

—a decree does not come within s. 92. The section refers to only what are known as "dispositive documents" and the words "or any matter required by law to be reduced to the form of a document" must be read in that sense. 91 I. C. 705: 1926 Cal. 643.

—a person who challenges the correctness of a Record of Rights must prove inaccuracy. 2 Pat. L. R. 87 : 87 I. C. 741 : 1925 Pat. 498, 88 I. C. 495 : 1935 Pat. 530 : 6 Pat. L. T. 805.

—person in a fiduciary character must prove good faith. 34 C. L. J. 529, 563.

—the fact that the onus has been wrongly placed becomes immaterial when it does not affect the decision on merits. 3 Lab. L. J. 445, 27 C. W. N. 134 : 35 C. L. J. 473, 34 C. L. J. 333, 529, 563.

—in a suit under Or. 21 r. 63, the burden of proof is on the plff., 2 Lab. L. J. 198, 60 I. C. 75, but where there is no decision in the claim case adverse to the claimant, this rule does not apply. 60 I. C. 751.

—when a deed is attacked after a long period the burden is on the person attacking it. 45 A. 581.

—a decision under s. 145 Cr. P. C. does not throw the burden of proving title on the loser. 1923 P. 401 : 71 I. C. 478.

—when encroachment is admitted, burden of proving extent is on the trespasser. 6 N. L. R. 59 : 71 I. C. 83.

—where the mortgagor admitted the execution and the receipt of consideration before the sub-registrar, the burden of proof of non-passing of consideration lay on the mortgagor. 14 L. W. 344 : (1921) M. W. N. 747, 2 Lab. 249 : 64 I. C. 901, 104 I. C. 173, 1925 Lab. 471 F. B., 1927 Lab. 272, 17 P. R. 1888 Diss. from.

—in the case of formally registered document in which receipt of consideration has been recited, the onus of non-passing of consideration is on the person alleging it, but in case of entry in an account book the onus is on the party alleging payment to prove it. 60 I. C. 730 : 68 I. C. 303.

—when the execution of a mortgage bond is admitted by the mortgagor or proved against him, onus is on him to prove that the recital as to the payment of consideration is false. 12 M. I. A. 292 P. C. Ref., but when a stranger contests the claim the onus is on the mortgagee to prove his case. 6 C. 263 Ref. Either party to a document may show that there was no consideration passed or in reality it was different from what was recited. 34 C. —the onus is heavily on the person who alleges that certain partition lists were not acted upon. 1928 Mad. 865 : 117 I. C. 720.

—in case of suit on a promissory note the plff. is to prove the identity of the person to whom the note was given, it being not a question of amount. 32 C. L. J. 132 : 62 I. C. 210.

—in a case between rival purchasers when the vendor admits receipt of consideration from the first purchaser, onus of its falsity is on the second purchaser. 68 I. C. 732.

Ss. 101 to 106. (Burden of proof of fact or knowledge)—contd.

—admission of signature on a document but not the execution does not shift the onus of proving the execution. This is specially so where the signature is put on blank paper. 20 A. L. J. 672 : 68 I. C. 809.

—when guardian sells property of a minor with the sanction of the Court, onus to prove want of necessity is on the minor. 42 M. L. J. 333.

—the meaning of the expression "proved" as defined in s. 3 is in no way affected by the incidence of the burden of proof. 50 C. 318.

—the onus is on the person setting up the will. 5 C. W. N. 895.

—but where the question was whether writing of the will took place before or after the testator took poison, the burden was held to rest on the party impugning the will. 21 A. 91 P. C.

—when the Zeminder sues for ejectment and the deft. sets up Shikims which is admitted or proved, the burden of proof as to whether the land is included within the Shikims is on the zeminder. 3 C. W. N. 763.

—in an ejectment suit, plff. must prove not only title but also possession within 12 years. 17 C. W. N. 389, P. C.

—in a suit for ejectment plff. must recover on the strength of his own title and cannot depend on the weakness of the adversary. 17 C. W. N. 669, P. C., 23 O. L. J. 151.

—where title of the plff. is proved or admitted the deft. is to prove his right to retain possession. 9 C. W. N. 144, 8 C. L. J. 170, Ref. 13 O. W. N. 661 Dist. 7 C. L. J. 553, 8 O. L. J. 170, 8 C. L. J. 513

—It throws upon the accused the burden of proving the existence of circumstances which bring the case within any of the special as well as any of the general exceptions of the Penal Code. 4 C. 124 : 3 C. L. R. 122.

—it is upon the accused to prove the existence of facts and circumstances which would show that he is not liable to be convicted of the offence with which he is charged 32 A. 451 p. 453.

—a witness is not protected if he makes a defamatory statement, it lies upon him to show that his statement falls within one or other of the exceptions to s. 499 I. P. C., 29 A. 685.

—when all the circumstances went to show that the intention of the accused was to employ a certain girl as a prostitute as soon as she was physically ready for the purpose, under s. 106 Evl. Act, the burden lay on the accused to prove otherwise. 33 C. L. J. 451.

—when thefts occurred at different dates the presumption is that stolen articles passed from the thief to the receiver on different dates also, the accused is to prove otherwise. 96 I. C. 120 : 27 Cr. L. J. 872.

Ss. 107 & 108. (Burden of proof of death.)

—ss. 107 and 108 relate to the question whether a man is alive or dead. 23 B. 296.

—there is a presumption in favour of continuance of life and it is for the person asserting death, to prove it. 64 I. C. 468: 22 Bom. L. R. 771, 1 Lab. 554.

—these secs. refer to a man being alive or dead at the time when the question is raised and not as to the time of the death. 35 C. 25: 5 C. L. J. 649: 11 C. W. N. 883: 8 A. 614, 23 B. 296. 11 C. L. —the inference of continuance whether back wards or forwards whether upwards or downwards, is an inference of fact and may therefore be rebutted. 1923 Cal. 247 : 72 I. C. 849 : 36 C. L. J. 339.

—signature by sheristadar in the writ of attachment "by order" of the Court should be presumed to be regularly done until the contrary is proved. 27 C. W. N. 1042 : 37 C. L. J. 331.

—the posting of a letter if not returned raises the presumption that it reached the addressee. 45 M. L. J. 817 : 33 M. L. T. 217, 8 Pat. L. T. 633 : 102 I. O. 821 : 1927 Pat. 305

—ghee can be presumed to be meant for human consumption. It is not a presumption of law but a supposition based on common sense. 49 C. L. J. 502 : 1919 Cal. 283 : 121 I. C. 561 : 31 Cr. L. J. 280.

—where the evidence on both sides is balanced the presumption is that the younger survived the elder. 1922 Bom. 347.

—where there are two conflicting statements of a witness by one of which he stands to gain a sum while by the other he stands to lose a bigger sum the latter statement should ordinarily be preferred. 1930 Pat. 293.

—when an appellate judgment is silent on a point the presumption is that it was given up. 68 I. C. 740.

—possession of one member of a Hindu joint family is proof of possession of the family. 11 B. L. R. 193.

—if an immovable property is in the name of his son, it is presumed to be the property of the son. 13 M. I. A. 232 P. C.

—when a Hindu family is joint and a nucleus exists, the onus is on the party setting up separate property. 18 C. L. J. 548, 5 C. L. J. 338 : 11 C. W. N. 478, P. C.

—when a property stands in the name of a junior Hindu member and no separate fund is proved the presumption is that the father acquired the property in the name of the son. 18 C. W. N. 428 P. C.

—there is no presumption that debt contracted by the manager of the Hindu family was contracted for the benefit of the family. 34 A. 126, 135.

—suspicion though a ground for a scrutiny cannot be made ground for presumption. 16 C. L. J. 629, 21 C. W. N. 585 P. C., 27 Bom. L. R. 746 : 1625 P. C. 177.

—when evidence of possession on both sides is conflicting it may be presumed that possession follows title. 8 C. W. N. 876, 12 C. 38, 27 C. 25, 27 C. W. N. 305.

—unsettled and uncoupled waste land being the property of no private owner, must be presumed to belong to the State. 3 C. W. N. 695.

—where land is not let out for agricultural purposes and tenants are in possession for a long time by erecting buildings, and successions to the tenancy have taken place, presumption is that it is permanent tenure. 8 C. 960, 5 C. L. J. 178 : 11 C. W. N. 242, 5 C. W. N. 858 : 28 C. 738, but in the absence of any of the above circumstances there will be no such presumption. 3 C. W. N. 255.

—it is the completion of a right to which circumstances clearly point where time has obliterated any record of the original commencement. The longer the period within which and the remoter the time when first a grant might be reasonably supposed to have occurred the less force there could not have been lawful. 31 C. 1930 P. —If the Crown withholds relevant document inference will be adverse. 50 C. 276, 36 C. L. J. 315, 316, 40 M. 402, 33 C. L. J. 336, 33 M. 620, contra 117 I. C. 292 1929 Mad. 399.

—the presumption arising from the non-production of a document is not quite as strong one in the case of an old document as in the case of a recent one as the possibility of its loss is more probable in case of old document. 1923 A. 441: 71 I. C. 654

—failure of the plaintiff to go into the witness box while he is the best person to give evidence as to his interest goes strongly against him 1930 Lah. I. 11 Lah. 142, 1927 P. C. 230 Rel on, 32 Bom. L. R. 924.

—if the best evidence though available is not produced it raises an adverse presumption 33 C. W. N. 430 49 C. L. J. 308: 27 A. L. J. 261: 57 M. L. J. 565 31 Bom. L. R. 721 114 I. C. 592: 1929 P. C. 95.

—when the prosecution fails to call any necessary witness the presumption will be that if the witness had been called he would not have supported the prosecution case. 121 I. C. 477: 31 Cr. L. J. 306: 1929 Pat. 651: 1929 Cr. C. 379, 29 Punj. L. R. 14: 1928 Lah. 125: 107 I. C. 100: 29 Cr. L. J. 212 —inconsistent pleas and not the pleas raised and proved, raises the presumption of falsity of defence. 33 C. W. N. 430: 49 C. L. J. 308: 27 A. L. J. 261: 31 Bom. L. R. 721: 114 I. C. 592: 1929 P. C. 95.

—the mere signature in a particular entry does not raise an irrebuttable presumption of law against which no evidence can adduced by the maker of it. 109 I. C. 221: 1928 Lah. 821: 29 Cr L. J. 493.

—when a man and a woman have cohabited continuously for a number of years the law presumes in favour of marriage and against concubinage. 33 C. W. N. 645: 27 A. L. J. 465: 1929 P. C. 135: 10 Lah. 725: 117 I. C. 17: 31 Bom. L. R. 846: 50 C. L. J. 89: 1929 M. W. N. 676 P. C.

—contingent co-habitation and acknowledgment of parentage or treatment which tantamounts to acknowledgment, is presumptive evidence of marriage and legitimacy. 3 M. I. A. 295 P. C. 3 A. 723, 10 A. 289, 3 I. A. 291: 2 C. 184, 7 C. W. N. 617: 25 A. 403 P. C., 29 C. 111, 2 Lah. 207: 3 Lab. L. J. 317: 63 I. C. 387, 117 I. C. 64: 1929 Rang. 64. But unless all the above circumstances be present there will be no such presumption. 26 A. 295.

—long co-habitation raises the presumption of marriage unless the connection is known to have started in mere concubinage. 98 I. C. 887: 1927 Lah. 48: 8 Lah. L. J. 532: 27 Punj. L. R. 849.

—presumption is that the document was made on the date which it bears. 21 C. W. N. 585 P. C.

—where a document is on plain paper and is unstamped and undated and has no date on the face of the day before although . . . should have been produced, . . . document is not a genuine one.

—when the document is in the hand of the debtor the presumption is that the debt has been cleared up. 1927 Pat. 186, 17 C. W. N. 49 P. C., 29 C. 334: 23 I. A. 43. 6 C. W. N. 401 P. C., 103 I. C. 458, or the obligation has been discharged 121 I. C. 730: 1930 Lah. 443.

—but where the title deeds which the mortgagor handed over to the mortgagee are still in the hands of the latter no such presumption will arise. 46 C. L. J. 292: 105 I. C. 263: 39 M. L. T. 290: 53 M. L. J. 295 P. C.

—where a notice sent by post in a registered cover, is returned by the postman with a note that the addressee refused to take delivery and its posting is proved, presumption will be that the addressee did refuse it. 1930 Lah. 439: 121 I. C. 382: 31 Punj. L. R. 26.

—when official documents are destroyed by fire and documents are prepared, presumptions as to those documents are that official acts were regularly done. 21 C. W. N. 897, 1931 Pat. 343: 63 I. C. 226, 1923 P. 96, 3 Pat. L. T. 617: 67 I. C. 371.

—the meaning of Ill. (e) is that Official Act will be presumed to have been regularly done, but where under the Act certain things are required to be done before any liability attaches to any person, it is for the person who alleges that liability has been incurred to prove that the things prescribed in the Act have been actually done. 53 C. 718: 30 C. —entries by the Collector in the order-sheet are not evidence as to service of notice within the meaning of s. 167 B. T. Act. 7 Pat. 733; 1928 Pat. 459; 9 Pat. L. T. 484; 115 I. C. 196.

—there is no impropriety to refer a thing as having been done when that thing is required to be done by a section in a statute. 96 I. C. 1039; 1926 All. 369; 24 A. L. J. 825 F. B.

—presumption is that the acts of the court were regularly carried out unless the contrary is shown. 93 I. C. 591; 1926 All. 691.

—things prescribed by statutes may be presumed to have been done. 48 A. 766.

—when an accused is convicted under s. 412 I. P. C. maximum penalty cannot be awarded to him presuming his knowledge of the nature of the dacoity under s. 114 Evl. Act. 32 C. L. J. 19.

—a conviction on the unsupported testimony of an accomplice is not maintainable. 54 C. 721; 31 C. W. N. 554; 1927 Cal. 536, 99 I. C. 34; 1927 Cal. 63, 41 C. L. J. 216; 1927 Cal. 63.

—the testimony of a professed accomplice should be carefully scrutinized with anxious search for corroboration. 112 I. C. 375; 1929 P. C. 15; 29 L. W. 155. P. C.

—the statement of an accomplice should be accepted when it is strongly corroborated in material particulars. 1930 All. 29; 127 I. C. 257; 31 Cr. L. J. 26; 1930 Cr. C. 45.

—an approver is unworthy of credit if he is not corroborated in material particulars. It is unsafe to convict an accused on the evidence of an approver corroborated by his son who is 7 years old and has been tutored. 1929 Lah. 587; 1929 Cr. C. 149; 11 Lah. L. J. 223; 30 Punj. L. R. 422.

—approver's statement as to the identity of the accused cannot be relied on unless corroborated. 48 C. L. J. 481; 30 Cr. L. J. 57; 113 I. C. 73.

—the corroboration of the approver's story requires most careful investigation upon the question of the identity of the accused person as participators in the occurrence. 1930 Cal. 430; 1930 Cr. C. 657.

—the corroboration need not necessarily consist of direct evidence. It is sufficient if there be circumstantial evidence committing the accused with the crime. 1929 Lah. 850; 1929 Cr. C. 626.

—the extent of corroboration required by the court naturally varies with the circumstances of each case including the character and antecedents of the approver and the degree of suspicion attached to his evidence. 1929 Lah. 850; 1929 Cr. C. 626, 11 Pat. L. T. 545.

—the word "may" in Ill. (b) does not mean "must." To entirely rule out the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice may in many cases lead to miscarriage. 1929 Cal. 822; 1929 Cr. C. 669.

S. 114. (Court may presume existence of certain facts)—contd.

—the evidence of the accomplice stands on the same footing as other evidence save in one particular respect, namely that the evidence of an accomplice is regarded ab initio as open to grave suspicion. 9 Pat. —a party cannot both approbate and reprobate. 33 C. W. N. 493; 49 C. L. J. 335; 27 A. L. J. 406; 1929 M. W. N. 422; 1929 77 P. C., 10 C. W. N. 747; 42 I. C. 554 (C), 30 Bom. L. R. 523; 110 I. C. 266; 1928 Bom. 279.

—a person successfully opposing an application under s. 47 cannot subsequently raise the plea in regular suit that it is barred by e. 47. 117 I. C. 285; 1929 Nag. 79.

—estoppel must be pleaded by the party. 28 C. L. J. 91; 22 C. W. N. 179.

—estoppel being eminently a matter of pleadings it must be set up in the pleadings or issues. 1929 Med. 467; 119 I. C. 152.

—estoppel must be pleaded with sufficient clearance. 6 Pat. L. J. 273; 2 Pat. L. T. 556; 61 I. C. 807.

—every estoppel must be reciprocal, i.e., to bind both the parties. 24 C. L. J. 541, 20 C. W. N. 1140; 6 C. L. J. 621.

—estoppel is purely personal and will not affect others in so far as they claim a title otherwise than through the person estopped primarily. 85 J. C. 540; 1925 Cal. 993.

—rule of estoppel is purely personal against the persons estopped and does not create any substantive right in rem. It does not depend on any motive, knowledge or intention of the person making the representation. 110 I. C. 665; 1928 All. 459; 26 A. L. J. 1105; 50 A. 885.

—anything done by a person in his representative character does not create an estoppel on any personal claim by himself. 1930 P. C. 249; 7 C. W. N. 940 P. C.

—estoppel does not confer any title but is merely a rule of evidence which prevents one party from denying the existence of facts which he represented and upon which another person had been induced to act to his detriment. 56 C. 989.

—where the plffs. made statements in a suit inconsistent with those made by their father in a previous suit against the same defendants, but the plffs. did not claim the property in suit through their father and there had been no change in the position of the defts. by reason of the prior inconsistent statement, held that the plffs. were not estopped. 29 C. —s. 115 deals with estoppel by misrepresentation. 33 C. 915 but misrepresentation on point of law does not operate as estoppel 30 C. 883

—the acquiescence or estoppel which will deprive a man of legal rights must amount to fraud. What elements are necessary to constitute such fraud enumerated. 73 I. C. 233 (O), 48 A. 453 : 92 I. C. 1017 : 1926 All. 324.

—the vendor of a property is estopped from denying the title of a person who has purchased from a purchaser from him. 36 C. L. J. 78.

—when one party does not rely on the action of the other party there is no estoppel. 23 C. W. N. 521.

—the test is whether the representation caused the other party to act on the faith of it. 20 C. 296 P. C., 4 C. L. J. 323, 62 I. C. 809.

—only that person to whom the representation was made or from whom it was designed can avail himself of it, if the declaration was intended to be general, then one, who did not hear it but who had the knowledge of it directly afterwards or within the time allowed for acting upon it, may act upon it. A declaration by the decree-holder in the sale proclamation that the property to be sold in auction is not subject to any incumbrance does not operate as estoppel as against him in favour of a private purchaser from the Jt. Dr. 1927 Cal. 34 : 97 I. C. 625.

—in order that representation may operate as an estoppel it must be a representation of an existing fact and not of mere intention or future promises. 56 C. 989.

—the deposition at the departmental enquiry is only admissible either to corroborate or contradict evidence. 40 C. 893 p. 918; 18 C. W. N. 185.

S. 126 (Professional communication).

—instructions to counsel are only privileged in the sense of being not to be disclosed to the opponent. There is no privilege to ask counsel whether he is acting for or against the party on whose behalf he is acting. He cannot use this privilege to prevent the disclosure of his instructions. 18 C. W. N. 185.

—there is however a presumption of good faith on the pleader's part, and in order to make him liable for defamation there must be convincing evidence that he was actuated by improper motives personal to himself. 41 C. 514.

—a solicitor is not protected from disclosing that he got a letter from his client, though he is not bound to disclose its contents.
 42 I. C. 532.

—conversation between one of several defendants and plaintiff's pleader about the compromise of suit is admissible in evidence as there was admittedly no express condition that evidence of interviews should not be given. 20 O W. N. 1217; 44 C. 130

—duty of the attorney to keep client's instruction and documents, secret. 84 I. C. 353; 1925 Bom. 1 P. C.

—absence of litigation or prospect thereof at the time the confidential communications are made is no excuse for disclosures, above case.

—disclosure of advice given by another person is also for-bidden. above case.

S. 127. (Section 126 to apply to inter pleaders, etc.)

—section 126 extends to communication made to the pleader's clerk the same confidential character that attaches to a communication to a pleader directed under s. 126. 26 C. 53; 2 O W. N. 649

—statements made to the clerk of the mukhtar who was acting as the pleader of the accused, are privileged as those made to his employer. 25 C. 736

S. 130. (Production of title-deeds of witness, not a party).

—a lessee is not bound to produce his original title deed. 17
 C. W. N. 103; 15 C. L. J. 6

—if a document be the title deed of a witness or any person who would be entitled to refuse to produce it, he cannot be compelled to produce the document. 11 C. L. J. 170

—but a party is entitled to interrogate on facts directly in issue e.g., particulars of a document. 41 C. 6

S. 132. (Incriminating question of witness.)

—a witness who being actuated by malicious motives makes a voluntary and relevant statement not elicited by any question put to him while under examination, to injure the reputation of another commits an offence under s. 500 I. P. C. and cannot claim privilege under this sec. 32 C. 756; 9 O W. N. 911; 2 C. L. J.

 of statute. The proper course is, in the first instance, to examine the language of the statute, to interpret it, to ask what is its natural meaning, uninfluenced by any consideration derived from the previous state of law; to begin with an examination of the state of law on the point, is to attack the problem on the wrong end; and it is a grave error to force upon the statute a meaning of the nature

S. 2. Reference to English cases if legal—contd.

—the criminal law applicable to India has been codified in the Indian Penal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code with the view that on any point specifically dealt with by it the law shall be ascertained by the interpretation of the language of those Codes. 45 M. 605 F. B.

S. 22. (Movable property).

—corporeal property is property perceivable by the senses in contradistinction to incorporeal rights as obligations of all kinds. 1 Weir 28, 4 M. 228. In a case where the question was whether a letter received by post could be considered movable property of the receiver it was held that the accused could not be convicted of dishonest misappropriation of property with respect to his retention of a letter. 40 All. 119.

—any part of the earth or any component part of the soil inclusive of stones and minerals, severed from the earth is movable property. 15 B. 702, 27 M. 531, F. B. 10 M. 255 overruled.

S. 23 (Wrongful gain or wrongful loss.)

—"by unlawful means" refers to an act which would render the doer liable to an action or prosecution. 2 L. B. R. 216 F. B.

—using a turban by the pledgee of it is not wrongful gain to him nor wrongful loss to the owner; to constitute wrongful loss or gain the property must be lost to the owner or he must be wrongfully kept out of it. 3 M. H. C. Ap. 6

S. 23. (Wrongful gain or wrongful loss)—contd.

—“wrongfully kept out of any property” means deprived of the benefit arising from the possession even temporarily and not keeping out of possession with the object causing trouble or anxiety. 25 C. 416

—college-fees are held to be property within the meaning of this section. 15 All. 210.

—forcible and illegal seizure of bullocks of a widow in satisfaction of debt due to her husband is a “wrongful loss.” 5 W. R. 63.
—pounding of a cattle even if not merely permitting cattle

—snatching away a document lying beside the arbitrator preventing a witness for referring to an endorsement thereon does not cause “wrongful loss” or “wrongful gain” 3 M. 261.

—breach of condition to sell a certain thing at a certain price after purchase does not constitute wrongful loss or wrongful gain to any one. 22 W. R. 82.

S. 24. (Dishonestly)

—this definition of the word “dishonestly” is not exhaustive. The wrongful obtaining of an acquittal is very distinctively the obtaining of an advantage and brings the case within the definition of “dishonestly” in the sec. and where the accused used a forged document for that purpose he could be convicted under s. 471 I. P. C., 1927 Pat. 60: 30 Cr. L. J. 236; 113 I. C. 712; 9 Pat. L. T. 800.

—the word “intention” used in the sec. has reference to the dominant motive without which the action would not have been taken. 2 Bom. L. R. 986, 25 B. 202.

—wrongful loss or wrongful gain need not be permanent but might be temporary. 68 I. C. 157.

—“gain” means material gain. 1925 Rang. 9.

S. 25. (Fraudulently).

—the words “fraudulently” should be confined to transactions of which deprivation of the property forms a part. 25 C. 512 F. 8.

—the word intent by its etymology seems to have metaphysical allusion to archery and implies aim and has reference to

S. 25. (Fraudulent)—contd.

—a general intention to defraud without the intention of causing wrongful gain to one person or wrongful loss to another is sufficient to support a conviction. 9 O. 53, 96 I. C. 850: 1926 Mad. 1072: 27 Cr. L. J. 994.

—defraud involves two conceptions, deceit and injury to the person deceived; so where a person added his name as an attesting witness in a registered document which was required by law to be attested his act was not fraudulent or dishonest and he was not guilty of forgery. 33 C. 75, (1915). M. W. N. 278.

—producing a false belief, by filing a false sanad, in the mind of the Settlement officer that the accused is entitled to the dignity of Loskar does not constitute intention to defraud. 10 C. 584.

—there is distinction between the meaning of the term "fraudulent" and "intention to defraud". The latter denotes an intention to produce a false belief as evidence to support

S. 26. (Reason to believe).

—one has "reason to believe," when the circumstances are such that a reasonable man would be led by a chain of probable reasoning to this conclusion although circumstances may fall short of carrying absolute conviction. 37 P. R. 1888.

S. 27. (Property in possession of clerk or servant).

—this section abrogates the distinction made by the English law between "possession and custody." But it does not express the complete thought of the Legislature on the question of possession. 44 C. 477.

—the word "possession" in the sec. shows that unlike the English law the Indian Law does not recognise the distinction between "possession" and "custody." Possession to be punished under the criminal law must be possession with knowledge. 1925 Lab. 272: 10 Lah. L. J. 408: 9 Lab. 531: 29 Punj. L. R. 629: 109 I. C. 209: 29 Cr. L. J. 481.

Because participation de facto may sometimes be obscure in detail, it is established by the presumption juris et de jure that actual presence plus prior abetment can mean nothing else but participation. S. 120 A (Criminal conspiracy).

—conspiracy consists simply in the agreement or confederacy to do some act, no matter whether it is done or not. 42 C. 957: 19 C. W. N. 676: 21 C. L. J. 331: 16 Cr. L. J. 497: 27 I. C. 513.

—this section is not applicable to offence committed before it came into force. 20 C. W. N. 292.

—overt acts may properly be looked at as evidence of the existence of a connected intention and in many cases it is only by means of overt acts that the existence of the conspiracy can be made out. But the criminality of the conspiracy is independent of the criminality of the overt act. 16 C. W. N. 1105: 15 C. L. J. 517.

—a conspiracy consists not merely in the intention of two or more but in the agreement of two or more to do an unlawful act or to do a lawful act by unlawful means. So long as such a design rests in intention only it is not indictable. When to agree to carry into effect the very plot is an act itself, and the act of each of the parties, promise against promise, actus contra actum capable of being enforced if lawful, is punishable, if for a criminal object or for the use of criminal means. 14 A. L. J. 688: 35 I. C. 991: 17 Cr. L. J. 431.

—in cases of an indictment for conspiracy when two people are indicted and are tried together either both must be convicted or both must be acquitted. So when three persons were charged with having entered into a conspiracy and two were acquitted the third person could not be convicted of conspiracy, whether the conviction be upon the verdict of the jury or upon his confession. 14 A. L. J. 688: 35 I. C. 991: 17 Cr. L. J. 431.

—the accused may legally be charged merely with the offence of criminal conspiracy. The mere association of an accused with any of the conspirators is not enough by itself to convict him of being a member of the conspiracy. 39 C. L. J. 151: 83 I. C. 513.

S. 121 A. (Conspiracy to commit offences punishable by section 121.)

—the essence of an offence under s 121 A is the agreement to do all or any of the unlawful acts mentioned in the section. It is not necessary that any act or illegal omission should take place in pursuance of the agreement. 1912 M. W. N. 207

—a conspiracy is a combination of two or three or more persons to do an unlawful act or to do lawful act by unlawful means. It consists not merely in the intention of two or more, but in the agreement of two or more to do an unlawful act, or to do lawful act by unlawful means; the agreement may be inferred from circumstances. It is not necessary that all should join in the scheme from the first; those who come in at a later stage are equally guilty, 37 C. 467, foolishness or ignorance does not mitigate the offence. 1 B. —an attempt to excite feelings of disaffection is equivalent to an attempt to produce hatred of the Government. 22 B. 152 F. B.

—"attempt" is the progress towards the actual commission of the offence. It does not matter that the progress was interrupted 34 B 378. 12 Bom. L. R. 21, nor the attempt to constitute the offence need be successful. 8 Bom. L. R. 421, 10 Bom. L. R. 849, 2 Bom. L. R. 286.

—attempt is an act done in part execution of criminal design amounting to more than mere preparation, but falling short of actual consummation, and possessing, except for failure to consummate, all the elements of the substantive crime. In other words an attempt consists in intent to commit a crime combined with doing of some act adapted to but falling short of its actual commission, it may consequently be defined as that which if not prevented would have resulted in the full consummation of the act attempted. 30 C. Hatred or contempt or disaffection.

—the definition of sedition given in s. 124-A. contemplates hatred or contempt or disaffection towards His Majesty or the Government established by law in British India, and this apart from any intention of the offender. 35 C 141, p 153.

—hatred or contempt may be created by writing, imputing to the Government base, dishonourable, corrupt or malicious motives in the discharge of its duties or writings unjustly accusing the Government of indifference to the welfare of the people. 39 M. 1085.

—a man may criticise or comment on any act or measure of the Govt., legislative or executive, and freely express his opinion upon it. He may express the . . . measures and he may do so . . . perversely and unfairly. So long . . .

he will be protected by the explanation; but if he goes beyond that, and, whether in the course of comments upon measures or not, holds up the Govt. itself to the hatred or contempt of his readers, as for instance, by attributing . . . suffered by the people, or character, or imputing to it . . . or indifference to the welfare of the people, then he is guilty under the section and the explanation will not save him 22 B. 112 p 137 38 C. 253 p. 261.

—the law can't do anything with the feelings of hatred but it steps in when any attempt is made to excite that feeling in others. 8 Bom. L. R. 421.

—disaffection means a feeling contrary to affection, in other words, dislike or hatred, 19 C. 35, it is feeling and not the want of feeling. It is not the absence of affection. It is intended to express a feeling which can only exist between the ruler and the ruled 8 Bom. L. R. 421. It means political alienation or discontent a spirit of disloyalty to the Government or existing authority. It is a positive political distemper, and not a mere absence or negation of love or good will. It is positive feeling of aversion which is akin to disloyalty. 22 B. 152 F. B.

—It means hatred, enmity, dislike, positive contempt and every form of ill-will to the Government. Disloyalty is perhaps the best general term comprehending every possible form of feeling to the Government. 22 B. 112. It means Government established by law in British India. 20 All. 55 F. B.

24A. Explanations 1, 2 and 3.

—the object of the explanation 1 is a negative one to show that certain acts which might otherwise be regarded as exciting or attempting to excite disaffection, are not to be regarded so. 22 B. 112 p. 133.

—a man may criticise and comment upon any measure or act of the Government, whether legislative or executive, and freely express his opinions upon it. He may express the strongest condemnation of such measures, and he may do so severely, and even contemptuously, so long as he confines himself to the facts, and does not go beyond that, to the expression of contempt of his Government. 112, 38 C. 253;

—a publicist, a journalist, or a speaker, has no right to attribute dishonest or immoral motives to Government. Criticism, though harsh and uncompromising, must be free from the taint of language which is likely to arouse or calculated to engender feelings of enmity, hatred, or disloyalty against the Government. 10 Bom. What constitutes rioting.

Force or violence

—the use of any force, even though it be of the slightest possible character, by any one of an assembly once established as unlawful, constitutes rioting. 34 P. R. 1868, 26 W. R. 6.

—actual use of force is necessary to constitute the offence. 1 A. L. J. 602.

—husband and his friends taking possession of wife by force and violence may be guilty of rioting (1864), W. R. (Gap. no) 12.

—violence extends to force against inanimate objects also. 40 C. 367 (1883) 4 P. R. 1839.

—active participation in actual violence is not necessary, some may encourage by words and others by signs while others may actually cause hurt, and all would be equally guilty of rioting. (1875) Rat. Un. Cr. 99.

S. 147. What constitutes rioting—contd.

—the word "violence" in sec. 146 I. P. C. is not restricted to force used against persons only, but extends also to force against inanimate object. 40 C. 367

—where it was found that the accused had gone and beaten on the door of the complainant's house when the latter fled away to save himself from being beaten and shot himself up in a room, held that the accused used violence which was sufficient under s. 146 I. P. C. to make their offence rioting 32 M. L. T. 190: 4 M. L. J. 407: 72 I. C. 356: 24 Cr. L. J. 356.

Unlawful assembly.

—an assembly cannot become unlawful by their repelling an attack made on them by persons who had no right to obstruct them,

In such case each is of such right. 39 C. (1916) M. W. N. 213, R. 278, but if after some exceeded the right of private defence others continued in the assembly aiding and abetting them, they would all be considered members of an unlawful assembly. 36 C. 296.

—persons of all sects are entitled to conduct religious processions through public street and the mere knowledge that they will be forcibly opposed is not in itself sufficient to constitute the members of the procession an unlawful assembly. 26 Cr. L. J. 1325: 89 I. C. 269, 1925 Oudh. 656.

—persons exercising their lawful right are not members of an unlawful assembly. 39 C. 896: 16 C. W. N. 1053: 4 I. C. 43.

—persons engaged in the exercise of a lawful right, of which they are in enjoyment, cannot be said to be enforcing a right but merely to maintain it. 41 C. 43.

L. J. 298: 29 Cr. L. J. 593:

S. 147. Unlawful assembly—contd.

—the common object of an unlawful assembly was to assault X. After the assault X ran away and two persons joined the assembly, held that the latter could not be punished under s. 149 as the common object had ceased to exist at the time they joined. 81 I. C. 794; 25 Cr. L. J. 1018.

—where certain persons who were found by the Police in the Railway line but were not committing any criminal acts, resisted their arrests and a fight ensued, they could not be punished under s. 147 as their arrest had no justification. 90 I. C. 712.

—a scuffle in a wrestling match in which some policemen were hustled was held to be an incident of trivial nature though the accused were technically guilty of the offence. 23 A. L. J. 1027.

—where a Police Inspector who arrested one person and a special Police did not arrest another was not acting lawfully. 40 C. 411.

"In prosecution of the common object of such assembly."

—In order to establish the common intention of an unlawful assembly it is not necessary to prove that its members actually met and conspired to commit an offence but it may be inferred from the circumstances of the case; where there is a concerted attack by five or more persons it may be validly and reasonably inferred that they all had a common intention and were therefore members of an unlawful assembly. 100 I. C. 232; 1927 Lah. 193; 28 Cr. L. J. 264.

—the words "common intention" in sec. 34 have not the same meaning as "common object" in ss. 146 and 149. Object of the assembly as a whole may not be the same as the intention which the several persons may have. 1929 Pat. 11; 113 I. C. 676; 30 Cr. L. J. 205.

—a person who is the leader of an unlawful assembly whose common object is to assault passersby commits an offence under s. 147. 24 Bom. L. R. 110 : 66 I. C. 192 : 23 Cr. L. J. 256.

—where a Sub-Inspector who went to make a search of a dacoity without a search-warrant, was beaten by the accused it was held that the search being illegal and common object having failed, conviction under s. 147 could not stand, 38 C. 304, but when the Police Officer acted bona fide with defective search-warrant the accused were guilty under this section read with sec. 99 16 P. R. 1913, 9 P. R. 1918.

—forcible removal of an ox and two cows from the possession of Mahomedans by several Hindus to prevent cow-killing did not constitute dacoity but rioting, 15 All. 22, but in subsequent cases it was held to constitute dacoity, 15 All. 299 and theft. 5 N. L. R. 17

L.J. 170 : 81 I. C. 631 : 25 Cr. L. J. 983.

—in case of confused rioting the prosecution is only to establish that the accused were voluntarily members of the crowd of rioters who committed the offence. 1929 Nag. 36 : 112 I. C. 51 : 29 Cr. L. J. 963.

Dispute as to possession in land.

—right to possession is no plea to a charge of rioting by making a forcible entry on land cultivated by trespasser in possession. 6 M. 215, 5 P. L. R. 47.

—in a charge of rioting of which the common object is to enforce a right or supposed right to land, it is necessary for the prosecution only to show that the accused was not in actual possession at the time of occurrence. A clear distinction must be drawn between enforcing a right and maintaining undisturbed the actual enjoyment of a right. 85 I. C. 711 : 26 Cr. L. J. 567. (C).

S. 147. Dispute as to possession in land—contd.

—temporary actual possession does not justify the action of the accused to commit riot. 35 O. 103.

—an order under s. 144 Cr. L. J. is not evidence of possession. 1925 Pat. 17: 81 I. C. 535; 25 Cr. L. J. 919; 5 Pat. L. T. 656.

—but a party with title taking possession by force cannot have common object to retain possession by force. 43 C. L. J. 245: 1925 Cal. 1235.

—where a party entitled to possession once forcibly takes possession its subsequent retention of possession by force is not with the common object of taking possession by force. 87. I. C. 98: 1925 Cal. 1235; 26 Cr. L. J. 946 —where the common object is to enforce a right or supposed right to land it is necessary for the prosecution only to show that at the time of occurrence the accused was not in actual possession. Right of private defence.

—when both parties are armed and prepared to fight, it is immaterial who makes the first attack, unless a particular party acts within the legal limit of self-defence. 1 C. L. R. 521, (1885) 4 P. R. 1889, 7 M. H. C. Ap. 35, 1 Weir 53.

—but there can be no private defence when the riot is pre-meditated on both sides. 20 All. 459.

See other cases under the heading "dispute as to the possession in land."

Charge.

—to sustain a conviction of rioting, there must be a clear finding as to the common object of the unlawful assembly and the same should have been specifically stated in the charge so that the accused may have an opportunity of meeting it. 75 I. C. 731 : 25 Cr. L. J. 43 : 1924 Lah. 667.

—where the charge is for an offence with one common object and the conviction is for an offence with another common object the trial is vitiated. 1925 Pat. 152.

—where the common object as stated in the charge is not proved the court of appeal or reference cannot substitute another to sustain that conviction. 38 C. L. J. 379.

—where in the charge the common object was stated to be to assault the accused but it was proved that the common object was to set fire to the accused's house and not to assault him, the accused should not be convicted. 1926 Pat. 405 : 29 Cr. L. J. 390 : 108 I. C. 421.

—if the common object assigned in the charge as framed, to support a case under s. 147 I. P. C., has not been sustained, the H. C. on a reference under s. 307 Cr. P. C. cannot invent another common object in order to support a conviction. 51 C. 271.

S. 147. Charge—confd.

—the mere fact that in a charge of rioting the common object is not stated does not invalidate the conviction if the evidence shows that the common object of the assembly was. If two persons were present and one of them was proved to have been a member of the assembly, then the fact that the other was not a member does not exonerate the accused.

—where the charge is framed so that a conviction under the common object, as stated in the charge is not precisely made out, the question in each case is whether the common object established agrees in essential particulars with that laid in the charge. 36 C. 865.

S. 149. (Every member of unlawful assembly guilty of offences committed in prosecution of common object):

Distinction between this section and s. 34. I. P. C.

—where one is constructively guilty of murder under sec. 34 I. P. C., it is doubtful if he can be said to have committed the offence within the meaning of s. 149, so as to make other prisoners, by double construction, guilty of murder. 8 O. 739, 751.

—s. 34 speaks of common intention while s. 149 refers to common object. Besides this s. 149 comes into operation only where there is an unlawful assembly of five or more persons as required by s. 141 and in that event it has wider scope than s. 34. 28 C. W. N. 170; 38 C. L. J. 411.

—s. 149 is wide enough to cover the principle of s. 34 I. P. C. 95 I. C. 594; 27 Cr. L. J. 818; 27 Punj. L. R. 347.

Construction of the section.

R. 1887.

Unlawful assembly.

—where it is not proved that five persons took part in the assault the accused cannot be constructively held guilty of murder under s. 302 read with s. 149 as the s. 149 applies where there is an unlawful assembly, 85 L. C. 371; 26 Cr. L. J. 531; 1925 Lah. 532; 6 Lah. L. J. 434.

In prosecution of common object or having its knowledge.

—every member of an unlawful assembly is responsible for an offence committed by another member in prosecution of the common object of such assembly or one which he must have known was reasonably likely to be committed, 6 All. 121, 9 All. 645.

—the members of an unlawful assembly may have a community of object only up to a certain point, beyond which they may differ in their objects and the knowledge pursued by each member of what is likely to be committed will vary and as a consequence of this the effect may be different on different members, 22 C. 306, 8 C. L. J. 561, 6 C. W. N. 98.

—the existence of a common object before the commencement of the fight is not necessary. It is enough if the common object is adopted by all the accused. 35 M. 243.

—no offence executes or tends to execute the common object, unless the commission of that offence is involved in the common object; when this is not the case, the offence may yet fall under the second branch. 61 P. R. 1887, 4 P. R. 1889, 17 P. W. R. 1915.

—persons who have not the common object to commit a particular offence or have not the knowledge that it may likely be committed, are not liable for the offence if committed by others, 20 W. R. 5, 11 B. L. R. 347, 13 C. W. N. 827, 1 W. R. 20, 3 Mad. Jur. 416, 17 Bom. L. R. 906, 8 Bom. Cr. C. 118, 26 P. R. 1914, 24 W. R. 66.

S. 149 In prosecution of common object or having its knowledge—contd.

—the object with which persons may set out may be that of causing hurt but when some persons carry on deadly weapon which may cause grievous hurt to any one and the others have knowledge of that, the charge under sec. 149 is legal. 1929 M. W. N. 888.

—If one member exceeds the limit of the right of private defence every other member acting with the common object shares with him the guilt of his act. 2 Pat. 595.

—each member of an unlawful assembly is guilty of murder if that murder was committed in prosecution of the common object of the assembly. 1923 Lah. 441.

—when the accused in the course of the attack speared a woman and her defenders with the result that the woman died of injuries and the others got serious wounds, the accused were guilty under Ss. 147 and 326 I. P. C. inasmuch as the killing of the woman was done not in prosecution of their common object. 83 I. C. 714; 1924 A. 670.

Application of the section.

—if a member of an unlawful assembly is to be found constructively guilty of an offence under s. 149 I. P. C., it must be the same offence on which the principal is guilty and not some other offence. If the rest of the accused are not constructively guilty of the same

—when the leader of an armed unlawful assembly shot an opponent, all were held guilty of murder. 3 C. L. R. 49, 13 W. R. 33, 4 B. L. R. Ap 47.

—where a man was killed at the command of one member of an unlawful assembly, all were guilty of murder. 12 A. I. J. 420.

—when a number of persons set out armed with pistols to abduct some woman they must know that murder was very likely to be committed to overcome any resistance that might be offered; where murder is actually committed all the members of the gang are equally liable. 86 I. C. 347; 26 Cr. L. J. 763; 1925 Lah. 371; 7 Lab. L. J. 51.

—if five or more persons congregate together for exercising a lawful right and resist opposition when necessary they do not commit any offence provided they do not exceed the limits of the right of private defence of their property or persons and if some one or more amongst them exceed that right, unless they can be identified; the presence of the accused at or near the spot is not sufficient to make them liable for the acts of others who exceeded their rights. 97 I. C. 54; 1927 Pat. 27; 27 Cr. L. J. 1078.

—when the accused are proved to be aggressors entering on the land asserting a supposed title and in order to establish possession by force and a murder is committed in prosecution of the common object by all the rioters, the accused are rightly convicted under s. 302 read with s. 149, I. P. C. 1929 M. W. N. 899.

Trial.Separate sentences.

—when each of the accused took an individual part in the assault separate sentences under ss. 323 and 149 were held legal. 40 C. 511; 18 I. C. 402; 14 Cr. L. J. 66.

1 Weir 120, but it has been held that for an offence under sec. 182 it is only necessary that the information given was false to the knowledge of the accused and for an offence under sec. 211 it is necessary that the accused should institute or cause to be instituted some criminal proceedings against another person or should falsely charge him with having committed an offence. 1917 M. W. N. 875. The same H. C. recently held that the essence of an offence under s. 182 is not the falseness of the information as it is under s. 211 but the contempt of the lawful authority of a public servant and the court has no jurisdiction to convict for an offence under s. 182 in the absence of a complaint by the public servant concerned 87 I. C. 418, 1925 Mad. 400; 26 Cr. L. J. 962; 1925 M. W. N. 108.

—the Allahabad High Court has held that although it is difficult to see what case could come under sec. 211 to which s. 182 could not be applied, yet, s. 182 would apply to a case which might not fall under sec. 211. It appears that it has been left to the discretion of the court to determine when and under what circumstances prosecution should be proceeded with under s. 182 and s. 211, 15 A. 336. Formerly it was held that where a specific false charge was made, the proper section for proceedings was sec. 211. 8 A. 383. But in a recent case it has been held that s. 211 is not intended to apply to anything except charges referred in court to a Magistrate and s. 182 is intended to apply where false information is given to the police 34 A. 522.

—the Bombay High Court has held that the criminal law makes a clear distinction between false charge which comes under sec. 211 and false information given to a police which comes under s. 182. Under section 182 the prosecution is to prove that the accused gave the information with the knowledge that it was false in an inquiry under sec. 211. Proof of the absence of the just and lawful ground for making the charge is an important element. 19 B. 717, 9 Bom. L. R. 33. If the information given to the Police amounts to the institution of a criminal proceeding s. 211 is applicable and sec. 182 applies when the information given falls short of amounting to an institution of a criminal proceeding. 15 Bom. S. 193 (Punishment for false evidence.)

Scope of the section.

—the section consists of two parts: one relates to false statements and the other to the fabrication of false evidence. In case of false statement it should be set out in detail and it should not be left to the trying court to find out what statements are false and what not so and before taking action against a person for fabricating false evidence it is necessary that he should be given an opportunity to substantiate his allegation. 1925 Mad 1157: 1925 M. W. N. 470.

—the statement made to the Police Officer should not be reduced to writing in accordance with s. 154 Cr. P. C. 27 M. 127.

—the Legislature did not regard the two phrases, "institute or cause to be instituted criminal proceedings" and "falsely charge" as synonymous. The word "charge" is not to be taken in its ordinary sense, but in its technical sense, as a charge is a statement made to the police or a Magistrate, and it is not a charge unless it is made to the police or a Magistrate. The word "charge" is not to be taken in its ordinary sense, but in its technical sense, as a charge is a statement made to the police or a Magistrate, and it is not a charge unless it is made to the police or a Magistrate.

exclusive in meaning, so that the institution of criminal proceeding must be by something which is not a charge and a charge must be something which is not the institution of the criminal proceeding. This cannot be for two reasons; first, there is no mode by which a private person can institute criminal proceedings, except by making a charge; and if he does not do it by the 'charge' he never does it, to whatever length the proceedings may go, and secondly because the last part of the section speaks of proceedings instituted, on a false charge. 17 C. 574 p. 578 F. B.

—the term "institution" in s. 211 means the institution by the accused himself, or by the police or others in consequence of the accused's action, in some criminal court. 65 I. C. 434 : 23 C. J. 82 : 1922 Lah. 133.

—the word false charge must not be understood in any technical or restrictive sense, but in the ordinary meaning of false accusation made to any authority bound by law to investigate it or to take any steps in regard to it, such as giving information of it to superior authorities, and institution of criminal proceedings includes the setting of the criminal law in motion. A complaint to village M., in such a case amounts to a "charge" and is also institution of a criminal proceeding. S. 221. (Intentional omission to apprehend on the part of public servant bound to apprehend)

—to constitute the offence the public servant must be legally bound to apprehend. 3 A. 60.

—where a Police officer while on duty as Sentry allowed a prisoner to escape he was guilty under this sec. 11 P. R. 1874.

—the duties of a chowkidar as a private citizen ought not to be confounded with his duties as a public servant, where the legal obligation of a chowkidar to arrest or detain is not established the chowkidar cannot be penalised for intentionally suffering a pilferer to escape from his detention. 1929 All. 935 : 1929 Cr. C. 663.

S. 222. (Intentional omission to apprehend on the part of public servant bound to apprehend person under sentence or lawfully committed.)

—the meaning of the phrase "intentionally aiding" in the sec. can be learnt from s. 107 Expl. (2). When the accused facilitates an attempt of the prisoner to escape he can be properly convicted under s. 222 and it makes no difference that the attempt was in fact frustrated by other circumstances. 1929 Lah. 631 : 119 I. C. 762 : 30 Cr. L. J. 1103 : 1929 Cr. C. 190.

S. 223. (Escape from confinement or custody negligently suffered by public servant).

—the sec. does not apply to a case of escape of a person under arrest under civil process. 12 C. 190.

—a public servant who is not authorised to take charge of convicted prisoners is not guilty under this sec. for the escape of a prisoner from his custody. 1 Bom. L. R. 349, 29 A. 377, 20 P. R. 1891.

—to constitute the offence, the escape must be due to the negligence of the accused, 7 A. L. J. 907, 6 M. L. T. 247, and not to inefficiency. 15 A. L. J. 883.

—in Ss. 220 to 225 the words "confinement and custody" are co-extensive in meaning. 2 P. R. 1891 F. B.

Ss. 299-300. (Culpable homicide, murder).

Distinction between culpable homicide not amounting to murder and murder.

—all murder is culpable homicide but all culpable homicide is not murder; thus sec 299 covers a wider ground than s 300, U. B. R. 1897-1901 vol. 1, 282.

—causing death by doing an act with the knowledge that it is likely to cause death is culpable homicide under s. 299 and causing death by an act known to be imminently dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, is murder under s. 300 Cl. (4), 106 I. C. 433; 29 Cr L J 17: 1928 Pat. 169; 9 Pat. L. T. 286; 7 Pat. 638, 8 C P. R. Cr. 9, L. B. R. 1893-1900 112, 5 W. R. 48 F. B.

—to render a culpable homicide a murder, the case must come within Cls 1 to 3 or 4 of s 300 8 W. R. 47, 51 F. B.

—where the evidence in a case leaves room for doubt as to whether the accused has committed murder or culpable homicide not amounting to murder, the benefit of that doubt should be given to the accused. 1927 M. W. N. 796

—it is not permissible for a Judge to sentence a prisoner to transportation for life on the ground that he is sufficiently certain of the guilt for that purpose but not sufficiently certain to sentence him to death. A feeling of doubt as to the guilt of the accused is to be considered before the verdict but not after. It has no place in the determination of the sentence after conviction. If the evidence is not strong enough to justify an irrevocable sentence the accused must be acquitted. 1930 Pat. 247; 9 Pat. 474; 11 Pat. L. T. 148; 1930 Cr. C. 515, 1930 Pat. 252; 124 I. The absence of the body is a circumstance which makes it necessary to proceed with the greatest care and caution, and sentences of death should not be passed unless one feels completely satisfied about it. —in case of murder by arsenic poisoning it is very unsafe to convict a person without such evidence as can be obtained from a proper scientific inquiry. The proper enquiry consists in the careful examination of the viscera of the body; mere examination of the vomit or nightsoil is totally insufficient and it is extremely dangerous to rely upon some traces of arsenic found in either of these two things. 1930 All. 532: 1930 Cr. C. 757.

—where the evidence against the accused is that the deceased was last seen in his company and that the accused disappeared immediately after the murder and he set up a false defence of having no knowledge of the deceased, these facts and circumstances were sufficient proofs of the murder by the accused. 1930 Lah. 264: 31 Cr. L. J. 138: 120 I. C. 529: 1930 Cr. C. 297.

S. 302. (Punishment for murder)—contd.

—the mere presence of the accused in the house of the accused would not by itself be convincing evidence of conspiracy to murder unless it be shown that they were in some way connected with the murder. 32 O. W. N. 783; 117 I. C. 680; 30 Cr. L. J. 820.

—the mere fact that the accused knows where the dead body has been buried does not prove that he committed the murder. 89 I. C. 901; 26 Cr. L. J. 1429.

—the mere fact that the accused produced blood-stained hatchet and dang from the heap of Turu does not prove his guilt of murder. 1928 Lah. 335; 10 Lah. L. J. 58. Similar case, 1928 Lah. 724; 29 Punj. L. R. 388; 10 Lah. L. J. 311. 110 I. C. 329; 29 Cr. L. J. 697.

—resistance to a Revenue Inspector in restraining property of the accused for arrears of revenue is an offence under this sec. although the warrant of distraint was addressed to the village headman and not to the Revenue Inspector. 46 M. L. J. 290; 76 I. C. 962; 46 M. L. J. 45; 25 Cr. L. J. 290.

—resistance by the lessee of the defaulter of water-tax to distraint his property while the warrant authorises the distraint of the property of the defaulter, is not an offence under this sec. 47 M. L. J. 447; 1924 Med. 895; 20 L. W. 669; 83 I. C. 1007.

S. 353. Trial.

—no sanction is required for initiation of proceeding under this sec. 31 C. 664.

—a conviction under this sec. will not stand unless the warrant of attachment which the public servant was executing is produced or secondary evidence of it is given. 26 C. 630: 3 C. W. N. 603, 8 C. W. N. 605, 3 L. B. R. 128.

—an accused discharged under this sec. cannot be convicted of an offence of assaulting a private individual especially when there is no complaint. 6 C. W. N. 202.

—to substantiate a charge of assault on a particular person it is not enough to prove that the words used and the preparation made by the accused were calculated to cause that person to apprehend that criminal force would be used on him, if he persisted in a certain course of conduct: there must be evidence to show that the accused was about to use criminal force to him then and there. 6 C. W. N. 342: 30 C. 97.

S. 361. (Kidnapping from lawful guardianship).

Nature of offence.

—the offence is complete when the minor is actually taken from lawful guardianship, it is not an offence continuing so long as the minor is kept out of such guardianship. 5 Pat. 536: 95 I. C. 392: 27 Cr. L. J. 792: 1926 Pnt. 493, 27 C. 1041 F. B., 1 M. 17 Dist. 26 M. 454 F. B., approved, 18 A. 350, 19 A. 109, 25 P. R. 191, 55 P. L. R. 1916, 13 P. R. 1904, 15 O. C. 351: 14 Cr. L. J. 93: 1 Ind. C. 653, 38 A. 664, 14 A. L. J. 765.

—the offence is complete when a person is actually taken out of the custody of the lawful guardian. Under the Indian Law no one is liable for being an accessory after the fact. 2 C. W. N. 81.

—whether the offence of kidnapping is complete when the person has been out of the custody of the lawful guardian is a question of fact to be determined according to the circumstances of each case. 6 Pat. 471: 104 I. C. 436: 28 Cr. L. J. 820: 1926 Pat. 159.

—there cannot be abetment of the offence on the hypothesis that the offence is a continuing one. 38 A. 664, 26 M. 454, 27 C. 1041 F. B., 6 P. R. 1894, 3 P. R. 1894, contra, 1 M. 173, but where there is a conspiracy before the kidnapping takes place there may be conviction for abetment, 26 A. 197; otherwise not. 4 C. W. N. 528.

—taking away in good faith is not kidnapping. 1 Weir 205 (1864) W. R. (gap no) 12.

—enticing need not be by means of forces or fraud, 7 W. R. 62, 2 W. R. 5, 61, 3 W. R. 15, but there must be taking or enticing of a child, so where a girl runs away for ill-treatment and accompanies the accused no offence under this sec. is committed. W. R. 6.

—where the evidence disclosed that but for something which the accused consented to do and ultimately did, a minor girl would not have left her husband's house there was sufficient taking in law. 109 I. C. 907: 54 M. L. J. 456: 29 Cr. L. J. 635: 1922 Mad. 585.

—the offence consists in the taking or enticing a minor out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor without the consent of such guardian. If a minor is taken with the consent of the guardian and subsequently married improperly without the consent of the guardian, to any person, such improper marriage would not be itself amount to kidnapping. A consent given on a misrepresentation of a fact is one given under a misconception of a fact within the meaning of sec. 90 I. P. C. and as such is not useful. 36 M. 453.

S. 361. Lawful guardian—contd.

—the mere relationship per se of master and servant does constitute the master the lawful guardian of a minor servant with this sec. above case

—the explanation of the words 'lawful guardian' has obviated the difficulty of protection to prove strictly that the law guardian was a guardian within the meaning of the legal acceptation of the word. 8 C. 971.

—in order to bring a case within the purview of the expression "lawfully entrusted" in explanation to s. 361 it must be clearly shown that not only the mother of the girl requested the alleged guardian to take the girl under his protection but also that he accepted the trust. 1930 Sind 164; 1930 Cr. C. 649, 8 C. 971 Ref.

—if the facts are not incompatible with the continuance of the father's legal possession of the minor he must be held to be in the father's possession or keeping even though the actual possession should be temporarily with a friend or other person. 24 M. 2 P. 291.

—'lawful guardian' includes not only the parents or relatives in whose house the minor lives and is brought up, but any other person with whom the minor resides by the consent, express or implied, of those who have higher legal rights. 7 P. R. 1911, does not include a person gaining possession of the minor by an offence under this sec. 7 P. R. 1911, 2 N. W. P. 286.

—if a minor abandons her guardian with no intention of returning she cannot be held to continue in the guardian's keeping. Whether there was such an intention in a case depends on the facts thereof. 87 I. C. 513; 26 Cr. L. J. 977. 30 C. W. N. 215; 1926 Cal. 467.

—a person cannot be convicted of kidnapping from lawful custody where the evidence shows that the minor had left the guardian to his keeping. 87 I. C. 215; 1926 Cal. 467.

—guardian of his sister and brother in respect of an offence under this sec. O. 831; 23 Cr. L. J. 479; 1911 Cr. C. 563; 1911 M. W. N. 39.

—a girl under 16 years of age who is under 18, may be held to be under the guardian. 1911 Cr. C. 563.

Lawful guardian under Hindu Law.

—under the Hindu Law the father is the guardian of his children and is ordinarily entitled to their custody, so if a mother removes a girl from her father's house for the express purpose of giving her in marriage without his consent, it will be an offence under this sec. 8 C. 969; 8 P. R. 1876.

—a Hindu who becomes a Sanyasi loses his right of guardianship over his children and cannot regain them by reverting back from Sanyasism. 21 M. L. J. 195; 1911 M. W. N. 39.

—the mother is the natural guardian of her children after the father, if he has not appointed any one else as guardian. 7 W. R. 74.

S. 361. Lawful guardian under Hindu Law—contd.

—under the H. L. though paternal uncles are preferential guardians to maternal uncles, where paternal uncles claim an adverse interest they are not entitled to the custody of the minor's person under the provisions of Act VIII of 1890 15 Cr. L. J. 640: 25 Ind. C. 840.

—the father and the mother only have the absolute right to the custody of a Hindu minor and no such right exists in the nearest male relation of the minor so as to be a defence to a charge of kidnapping a minor from a de facto guardian. 42 A. 146: 18 A. L. J. 64.

—mother is the proper and natural guardian of an illegitimate child. 1 C. 971.

Lawful Guardian under Muhammadan Law.

—the mother being the lawful guardian, if a father takes away a son under seven, or a daughter under puberty, if sunni, or under seven, if shiah, or an illegitimate child from the custody of the mother, he commits an offence under this sec. 11 C. 649, 8 A. 322, 2 W. R. (Civil) 76, 2 A. 71.

—the mother is the natural guardian of her illegitimate children, 8 C. 971, and under the Sunni Law of the minor daughter till she reaches puberty at the age of fifteen; 6 Bom. L. R. 536, 12 Bom. L. R. 891, even when the daughter is married. 32 C. 444, and attains puberty. 60 P. R. 1905.

—in the absence of any evidence that a lawful guardian entrusted the custody of a Muhammadan minor girl to her husband a person cannot be convicted for kidnapping her from the custody of her husband. Under the Muhammadan Law, in the absence of the mother, mother's mother is the lawful guardian of a girl who has not attained puberty, the husband is not the lawful guardian of her person. 27 C. W. N. 531: 37 C. L. J. 329: 73 I. C. 936: 24 Cr. L. J. 712, 32 C. 444.

—according to Muhammadan Law the occurrence of puberty determines minority and the mother's right to custody, but for the purposes of sec. 363 I. P. C. regard must be had only to the definition of minority in s. 3 Indian Majority Act. 37 M. 567.

Consent of Guardian.

—consent given by the guardian after the commission of the offence is of no avail nor the consent given by a temporary guardian in collusion with the accused. 31 A. 448: 6 A. L. J. 682.

—consent given on a misrepresentation of fact is no consent. 36 M. 453, 17 P. R. 1916.

—where the mother connived at the seduction of her daughter there was reason to believe that the subsequent taking by the accused was with her consent. (1912) U. B. R. 136.

S. 361. Out of the keeping.

—the word keeping implies neither prevention nor detention but rather maintenance, protection or control manifested not by continual action but as available on necessity arising. 6 Bom. L. R. 785, A. L. J. 792.

—where a girl was ordered by her father to take food to the bullocks and as she was coming home she was persuaded by the accused to accompany him, it was taking out of the keeping of the lawful guardian. 40 A. 507.

—where a female minor by preconcerted arrangement with the accused left the house of her parents of her own accord and met the accused at the appointed place, the accused was held guilty as he was an active participator in the girl's leaving her parent's house. 1907 U. B. R. (P. C.) 11, 1 L. B. R. 205.

—but where a low class girl under sixteen left the custody of her husband and parents and voluntarily stayed with the accused for a month after which she changed hands several times the accused was not guilty under this sec. 37 A. 624.

—where a married woman under sixteen quarrelling with her mother-in-law left her husband's house but on her way she was induced by the accused to accompany him, the accused was guilty under this sec. 14 A. L. J. 792, 8 S. L. R. 182; 16 Cr. L. J. 117; 27 Ind. C. 161.

—where before the confirmation decree by the High Court dissolving the marriage and directing the wife to deliver up to the husband the son born of the marriage, the wife removed the boy from the father's custody, and was held that as the order made until confirmed by the H. C. th under this sec. 18 C. W. N. 464; 41 C. 714; 15 Cr. L. J. 72; 23 Ind. C. 434.

—if a minor girl leaves her husband's house without any persuasion, inducement or blandishment held out to her by a man so that she has got fairly away from home, and then goes to the man, he cannot be deemed to have infringed the law even if he does not restore her to lawful guardian. 73 I. C. 260; 24 Cr. L. J. 564; 1923 Lah. 330.

—where the accused was appointed a teacher by the father of a boy below the age of 14 to teach Quran and the father went away on leave for a short time the boy remaining under the temporary guardianship of the accused and the accused, with the object of teaching him how to paint scenes with the idea of inducing him to join a theatrical company, removed the boy to a distant city, he was guilty of kidnapping. 86 I. —when a man by a promise of marriage induces a woman to leave her house, but does not marry her or get her married, he is said to deceive her within the meaning of this sec. 4 A. L. J. 482: 27 A. W. N. 199: 6 Cr. L. J. 9.

—deceitful marriage of a girl with the intention of prostituting her amounts to abduction 7 P. R. 1831 Cr.

—where no force or deceit is practised no offence is committed. 2 W. R. 7, 11 P. R. 1833.

—compelling a girl to go away with the intent to have sexual intercourse is punishable under s. 366 read with s. 362, and not Ss 396 and 506. 9 M. L. T. 406: 12 C. L. J. 241: 10 Ind. C. 290.

—when the appellant met the girl she had ceased to be a kidnapped woman in the strict sense. She was then a free agent but she would not have gone with the appellant but for his false representation to her as to his being Police constable and the inducement held out by him that he would take her to the police station, his action therefore amounted to abduction under s. 362. 73 I. S. 365. (Kidnapping or abducting with intent secretly and wrongfully to confine person.)

—to support a conviction under s. 365 it must be clearly proved that, at the time of the abduction it was the intention of the accused to secretly and wrongfully confine the person 18 C. L. J. 578: 15 Cr. L. J. 43: 22 Ind. C. 187, 109 I. C. 677: 29 Cr. L. J. 597: 10 A. I. Cr. R. 277.

—to constitute the offence intention to secretly confine the abducted person is necessary 92 I. C. 213: 1925 Lah. 614: 27 Cr. L. J. 229.

—s. 365 I. P. C. makes punishable the offence of abduction with intent to cause the person abducted to be secretly and wrongfully confined. So when all that was proved was that a woman was wrongfully confined and not that her whereabouts were concealed from her relatives, the offence could not be considered under s. 365.

Cr. L. J. 812.

—previous conviction under s. 452 was no bar to the accused being tried under this sec. 26 A. W. N. 32.

Ss. 372, 373. (Selling or buying minor for purposes of prostitution)

These ss have been amended by the Amending Act XVIII of 1924.

'Ss. 372, 373. Scope of the sections.

—s. 373 must be read in conjunction with s. 372 which is its counterpart and the question whether a woman under the age of eighteen has been bought and sold, hired and let to hire, disposed of and possession obtained are questions of fact for the jury in each case and not of law for the Judges. 52 Bom. 403 : 1928 Bom. 336 : 29 Cr. L. J. 993 ; 112 I. C. 209 : 30 Bom. L. R. 613.

"Sells, lets to hire or otherwise disposes of."

—this sec. contemplates a case of letting or hiring or other similar transactions by which the possession of a girl is obtained with the intention of employing her habitually for the purpose of indiscriminate sexual intercourse. 21 C. 97.

—the words "let to hire" in s. 372 refer to a making over of a minor either in perpetuity or for a term and for the commission of an immoral act of sexual intercourse. These words are the counterpart of the word "hire" in s. 373. Rat. Un. Cr. 962 : Cr. Rul. 16 of 1898, 21 C. 97, fol., 1 M. 164.

—the term "dispose of" has many meanings. It denotes inter alia "to bestow for an object or purpose," "to make a change in the circumstances," it does not necessarily imply that there has been a transfer of possession, nor do the terms "sell or hire" necessarily connote a present or immediate transfer of possession. A change in the circumstances of the minor is a "disposal." 1 Weir 359 F. B.

—the word "disposal" connotes some control of the person disposing, over the minor disposed of. 48 M. L. J. 594 : 86 I. C. 804. 21 L. W. 472.

—seeing that the term in s. 372 is used in conjunction with selling and letting to hire, it was contemplated some physical disposal, the exercise of some power of disposal, the exercise of some power of disposal, irrevocable in its moral effects, "sells, lets to hire or otherwise disposes of" acts ejusdem generis. 15 M. 328 : 1 Weir 386.

—the performance of the ceremony of tying talians to a minor girl, worshipping a basin of water and distributing food does not come within the provisions of s. 372 though the ceremony may be a preliminary step before the selling, letting out or disposing of the girl for the purpose of prostitution. 27 Bom. L. R. 1022 : 87 I. C. 1050 1925 Bom. 478 : 26 Cr. L. J. 1482.

Ss. 372, 373. "Buys, hires or otherwise obtains possession."

—the words "buys" and "hires" convey that meaning according to their ordinary acceptance and giving them due effect, it seems that the associated words "or otherwise obtains possession" were not intended to do more than include other modes of obtaining the same kind of possession as that of buyer or hirer. To bring a case under this sec. it is essential to show that possession of the minor of the sec. by Act V of 1924 this view does not hold good. See the following cases.

—to constitute an offence under this sec. it is not necessary that the possession of the minor should be obtained from a third person. It is enough if the accused in fact obtained possession of in the prostitution or other unlawful and immoral use of minors. It is not intended to make punishable the buying, hiring or otherwise obtaining possession for a single act of sexual intercourse with the person so obtaining possession. above case.

—buying, hiring, or otherwise obtaining of the possession should not be from a third person, agreement or understanding may be with the minor himself. above case.

—to constitute the offence it is necessary that there should be making over of possession of the minor girl either by sale or by a similar arrangement. 35 M. L. J. 157: 1918 M. W. N. 484: 24 M. L. T. 77.

—where a minor girl was brought from Kashmir to Bombay by one accused and put in the brothel there by another accused the offences under ss. 373 and 114 I. P. C. were committed in Bombay and not in Kashmir. 101 I. C. 593: 29 Bom. L. R. 490: 28 Cr. L. J. 455: 1927 Bom. 666.

"With intent that such minor shall be employed.....immoral purpose."

—the onus of proving an offence under s. 373 is on the prosecution but proof of intention (or knowledge such as are mentioned in s. 373 I. P. C. is almost entirely a matter of inference from circumstances. Where all the circumstances want to show that the intention of the accused was to employ the girl as a prostitute as soon as she would be physically ready for the purpose, under s. 106, ill (a) of the Evl. Act the burden lay on the accused proving that she intended to wait until the girl reached the a 16. 35 C. L. J. 451: 1922 Cal. 539, (12 M. 273, 18 A. 24, 22 C. 164

—partial penetration not sufficient to cause any injury to the hymen constitutes rape and not merely an attempt to commit rape. 100 I. C. 113; 28 Cr. L. J. 241; 7 A. I. Cr. R. 416; 1927 Lah. 735.

Ss 378, 379. (Theft, punishment for theft)."Intending to take dishonestly".

—in order to sustain a conviction under s. 380 I. P. C. it must be found that the accused dishonestly took the property out of the possession of the complainant and "dishonestly" has been defined as meaning with intent to cause wrongful loss to one person and wrongful gain to another. Where the accused took away his kettle after repair from the complainant without paying his dues the removal of kettle was not dishonest and the conviction under s. 380 was illegal. The complainant had no lien over the kettle and sec 120 of the Contract Act did not apply. 29 C. W. N. 1011: 90 I. C. 289: 26 Cr. L. J. 1505.

—the essence of the crime is dishonestly taking of movable property out of possession of some person. So, where the accused removed the goods acting under a mistaken notion of law and believing that the property was his and he had the right to take, he was not guilty under this sec. 52 C. 1015.

—recent and unexplained possession of the property would be presumptive evidence against the accused on a charge of robbery. 13 M. 426.

—the essence of the offence of robbery is that the offender for the end of committing theft or of carrying away or attempting to carry away property obtained by theft, commits one or other of the wrongful acts mentioned in sec. 390 19 Cr. L. J. 27: 42 I C. 987.

—to constitute the offence of robbery it is not necessary that extortion should follow immediately upon the restraint. In the last part of illustration (d) of this section it is said that the offence of robbery is constituted if the father is in instant fear of his child's death although the child may have been in the hands of the gang for sometime. Therefore, where the accused seized a person and tied him to a pillar and would not release him unless he paid Rs. 100 and in fact he was released on payment of Rs. 75 it was a clear case of robbery. 99 I C. 396: 28 Cr. L. J. 164: 1927 Mad. 307.

—so also the offence of robbery would be quite complete if the robbers scare away the owner on account of the fear caused in his mind before they are able to make their entrance into the house but where the owner of the house is scared away by one crowd and the house is subsequently robbed by another crowd, acting independently of the first crowd, the offence would not be robbery. 26 Cr. S. 399. (Making preparation to commit dacoity.)

—where a person is convicted of dacoity and also of assembling along with others for that purpose, separate sentences can be awarded for each of the offences proved. But in practice the sentences should be concurrent. 81 I. C. 168: 25 Cr. L. J. 680: 1923 Lah 119.

—under this sec. having in possession or immediate control any explosive substance is one of several means to the end. 39 C. 119

—a mere assembly without further preparation is not a "preparation" within s 399 I P C. for if it were so s. 402 would be redundant. 41 C. 350: 18 C. W. N. 498, 23 I. C. 235: 15 Cr. L. J. 385, 9 Lah 550 109 I C 593: 29 Cr. L. J 577: 1928 Lah. 193

—in order to commit an offence of preparation it is not necessary that the prisoners should have done an overt act towards the commission of dacoity What the law contemplates is that they should have done some act to get ready for a dacoity, and the collection of men from different villages coupled with the collection of arms sufficiently proves the required preparation, 1916 P. W. R. 37: 34 I. C. 1000: 17 Cr. L. J. 230.

—where a number of persons assembled at a place where dacoity was contemplated and one of them armed himself with a gun with a view to prevent any arrest being made, there was sufficient material to constitute the offence under this sec. 97 I. C. 745: 27 Cr. L. J. 1161: 8 Lah. L. J. 406: 27 Punj. L. R. 752.

—to constitute an offence under this sec. it is not necessary that the persons shown to be making the preparation should be five or more in number. But it is necessary to prove that the raid for which they were making preparation was to be committed by five or more persons 71 I. C. 360: 24 Cr. L. J. 136.

S. 400. (Punishment for belonging to a gang of dacoits.)

—in a trial for an offence under this section evidence of previous conviction for dacoity and of orders binding the accused down under s. 110 Cr. P. C. are admissible for proving habit as association. 52 C. 595: 87 I. C. 925: 26 Cr. L. J. 1037 872: 42 C. L. J. 501.

S. 400. (Punishment for belonging to a gang of dacoits)
—contd.

—the offence contemplated in this sec. is one of a very special character and entirely the creation of statute and should therefore be strictly construed. Association of the habitual pursuit of dacoity is the gist of the offence. It must be established that the accused belong to a gang whose business is the habitual commission of dacoity. The fact that some of the accused had once been sent up on a charge of dacoity of which they were acquitted could not be relied on to prove that they were habitual dacoits. 16 C. W. N. 69 : 13 Cr. L. J. 39 : 13 Ind. C. 279, 15 C. W. N. 593, 23 W. R. 18, 32 M. 179 : 6 A. W. N. 1886, 65, 66, 24 M. 523.

—“habitual” means constant, 19 C. 190 and it must be proved that the gang was associated for the purpose of habitually committing dacoity. 1 C. W. N. 146, 23 W. R. 18, 18 P. L. R. 1910.

—the word “belong” implies something more than casual association. It involves continuity and indicates a more or less intimate connection with a body of persons extending over a period of time sufficiently long to warrant the inference that the person has identified himself with a band the common object of which is the habitual commission of dacoity. The essence of the sec. is the agreement habitually to commit dacoity, not the actual commission of dacoities. 1928 Cal. 309 : 110 I. 471 : 10 A. I. Cr. R. 371, 1930 W. N. 862, 19 A. L. J. 725 : 63

10 It is not necessary that the person convicted must have taken part in any dacoity. Evidence though not believed for a conviction under s. 395 I. P. C. may be relied upon for the purpose of conviction under s. 400 I. P. C. Evidence showing the actual participation by an accused in any dacoity is evidence both of association with the gang and his object of such association. 1930 Oudh. 455 : 1930 Cr. C. 1079.

—the word 'gang' is derived from the Anglo-Saxon word 'gangan,' to go, which means 'a number going in company, hence a company or number of persons associated for a particular purpose'. "Belong to a gang of persons" in the section means 'to be one of a gang of persons.' A person who receives stolen property from a gang cannot be said to belong to it, and a habitual receiver is punishable under s. 413 I. P. C. and not under this sec. 99 I. S. 427. (Mischief causing damage to the amount of fifty rupees.)

mischief is not a minor form of criminal breach of trust. The intentional causing of wrongful loss or damage is an essential element of the offence of mischief. Where the accused wrongfully permitted the licensee to cut one kind of tree instead of another from the forest but there was no allegation that the Government had sustained any loss owing to that act, conviction under s. 427 I. —the words "bull" and "cow" in sec. 429 I. P. C. include the young of those animals. The section specifies the more valuable of the domestic animals without any regard to age, but in respect of other kinds of animals not so specified, the section could not apply unless the particular animal in question was shown to be of value of Rs. 50 or upwards. 22 C. 457.

P. C. for letting the bunds of the khaals and for cutting abud bund, held that the case involved a question of relation rights of the parties, therefore a civil proceeding was the appropriate remedy and prosecution under s. 430 I. SS. 435, 436. (Mischief by fire or explosive substance with intent to cause damage, punishment).

—it is absolutely necessary in order to convict an accused under s 436 to prove that the building which he destroyed came within one of the classes mentioned in the sec. and the words "ordinarily used" do not mean that other buildings are from time to time used for the same purpose. They mean that that particular building is ordinarily used for the same purpose. 35 Cr. S. 441, 447. (Criminal trespass, punishment for criminal trespass).

—the unusually vague and elastic language used in sec. 441, "enters or causes to be entered" might lead to the conclusion that it was not necessary that the entry should be limited in scope. It was limited is scarcely possible, but it is plain that its scope must be confined within those bounds that common sense and sound reason dictate. 2 A. 465, 14 W. R. 25.

—there must be some unauthorised entry into or upon property, that is to say, either directly against the will of the person in possession, or constructively against his will, in the sense that he who enters has an unlawful intention, which, were it known to such person, would make him object, forbid or prevent the entry, that in ignorance of such intention he sanctions and permits, above case —in order to constitute the offence of criminal trespass, it must be proved that some criminal intent was present in the mind of the accused and it does not follow that, because an act is unlawful, and is one that the civil law will restrain, or for which it will compensate the injured party in damages, it is necessarily criminal. 29 P. R. 1882, 13 P. R. 1905, 12 P. R. 1906 F. B.

—property in the sec means corporeal property. 2 C. 354, 1 A 527.

—s. 447 requires it to be affirmatively and positively proved that the complainant was in possession of the land in dispute with respect to which criminal trespass is said to have been committed. 3 Pat L T 347, 67 I. C. 618; 13 Cr. L. J. 440; 1922 P. 296.

—"possession" in the sec means actual possession of any person other than the trespasser, 11 W. R. 11, 7 W. R. 28, 17 A. L. J. 927, 1 Weir 518, it may be the possession of joint owner. 8 A. L. J. 927, 10 Bom L R. 285.

—where formal possession was delivered through court to the complainant and the accused remained in possession thereof, he was not guilty of criminal trespass. 88 I. C. 357; 1925 All. 502; 26 Cr. L. J 1125

—where a decree for ejectment of a tenant under the Agra Tenancy Act was illegally executed and the tenant re-entered upon the land, the tenant must be considered to have been legally in possession and cannot be convicted of criminal trespass. 27 A. L. J 92; 29 Cr L. J 1096; 112 I. C. 630.

—intimidation, insult or annoyance can in most cases arise only when the premises are in the actual possession of some body. They are at all events results which more naturally follow when premises are occupied than when vacant. Mere constructive possession is not sufficient to sustain a conviction. 47 A. 855; 26 Cr L. J 1273; 88 I. C. 1049; 1925 All. 510; 23 A. L. J. 679; L. R. 6. A. 132 Cr., but see below.

—the sec. does not require the land to be in the actual possession of the complainant. If given under the decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, the party to the suit who is in possession at the time of the trespass is the party to the suit who is in possession. 30 Bom. L. R. 631;

—a criminal act may injure either the person in actual possession or the person in constructive possession or both. 33 C. L. J. 118.

—constructive possession is included in the word "possession" so that the trespasser cannot be heard to say he could not have caused annoyance merely because the party in possession of the trespassed premises was absent at the time of trespass. 1931 M. R. 6, or when joint owner takes the law into his own hands to recover possession, 10 Bom. L. R. 285, he commits criminal trespass.

—the offence of criminal trespass can only be committed against a person who is in actual physical possession. If a person in joint possession wishes to have actual possession his remedy is in bringing a suit for actual partition; he cannot forcibly take possession alleging criminal trespass on the part of the person who is in possession by permission of one of the co-owners. 5 O. S. 467. (Forgery of valuable security, will &c.)—contd.

—the essentials of the offence under this sec. are (1) that the document should be altered, (2) that the alteration should be done with the intention of causing injury or damage to some person, and (3) that it should be done dishonestly or fraudulently. Where the President of an Union Board was charged with having made an incorrect entry in the minutes of proceedings recording a false resolution purporting to be made by the Board sanctioning a sum of Rs 50 for legal expenses and it was not shown that he did anything more than expediting the payment of the sum which was really due, no offence was committed under s. 467 or s. 464 I. P. C. 1931 M. W. N. 361.

S. 468. (Forgery for purpose of cheating).

—prisoner deceiving employer by falsifying account-books in prisoner's custody, such deception being likely to cause damage to employer is rightly convicted under s. 468 I. P. C. instead of under s. 465. 18 W. R. Cr. 46.

Civil Cases.

—in a civil suit it has been held by the Calcutta H. C. that a trade-mark is a mode of warranting the origin of goods to which it is attached, or their trade association, and it is of the essence of trade-mark that its representation should be true. 15 C. W. N. 280.

—in the same case it was held that in India there is no system of registration nor is there any provision for statutory title to a trade-mark so that the rights of the parties must be determined in accordance with the principles of the English Common Law.

—in another civil case of the same H. C. it has been held that the right of exclusive user of a name or a number as a trade-mark is not so absolute and unqualified right which would entitle the owner to prevent another person from using it under all circumstances. It is only when the use of that name or number deceives or is reasonably likely to deceive the public that it can be interfered with or prevented. 24 C. 364.

S. 479. (Property mark.)

—the term "movable property" in s. 479 is intended to include a class or category of properties falling under one ownership, not merely the parts of it which may pass from the hands of the owner into other hands. The class is stable though the units are ambulatory. A property mark is intended to denote ownership over all movable property belonging to him, whether it is all one kind or different kinds. So long as the person owns movable properties his property mark which has been or may be impressed upon them remains his, though any particular article out of it may after such impression pass out of his hands and cease to be his. 6 Bom. It is not necessary to be proved that the accused in such a case had acted with intent to defraud, but if the accused proves that he acted without intent to defraud, he is entitled to be acquitted. 1929 Rang. 322 : 1929 Cr. Præsumptions.

—under ss. 482 and 486 I. P. C. the prosecution has not to prove the mens rea, and as the burden of proving innocence is thrown on the accused under these sections, when once a prima facie case has been established, the accused, a Limited Company, can prove its innocence by the evidence of its agents or servants, or otherwise as it thinks fit. 7 Bur. —under s. 482 I. P. C. 113; 30 Cr. L. J. 882.

—even though no cases of purchasers having been deceived by the use of false trade mark are proved, this fact standing alone is insufficient to justify the contention that the accused acted without intent to defraud. The state of mind of the person responsible for the introduction of the trade mark is a most relevant fact which can be established by evidence. In the absence of such evidence the accused cannot be held to have discharged the onus of proving want of intention which was upon him. 1929 Rang. 322; 1929 Cr. C. 498.

—the intention of the legislature will be frustrated if it is held that the owner of a trade mark can stand by for several years while his trade mark is being infringed continuously and then bring a criminal complaint in respect of some recent instance in which there has been an infringement. To interpret the section in that way would reduce its provisions to a nullity for it would entirely remove the bar of limitation except in cases where the series of infringements have actually ceased. In the present case the accused was prosecuted once in 1908 and then in 1910 for using a false trade mark, the charge against him being that he sold oil which was not oil manufactured by the Burma Oil Company, Limited, in second hand tins of that company's make, without obliterating the company's trade mark on the tins and he was both times acquitted. When the company by their agent lodged a fresh complaint alleging the commission of a fresh offence by the accused, held that the complaint was barred by s. 15 of the Merchandise Marks Act. 4 Bur. L. —the complainant had a soda water company and had a special paper label and it appeared that both the bottle and the label had been registered under the Patents and Designs Act. The accused who was the proprietor of another soda water company used the bottles specially belonging to the complainant but it was proved that there was a common fraction in Calcutta for various kinds of bottles to be used by firms indiscriminately and in this particular case the accused acted innocently, held that as there was no intention to do anything harmful a conviction under s. 486 I. P. O. or ss. 6 and 7 of the Merchandise Marks Act was not sustainable and also as there was no counterfeiting within the definition of the word in s. 28 I. P. O. no conviction under s. 483 I. P. —an imputation ordinarily implies an accusation or something more than a mere expression of suspicion, but it is rather difficult to draw the line of distinction. —a man's opinion of himself cannot be called his reputation.
7 A. 205 p. 221. F. B.

Explanation 1. To impute anything to a deceased person.

—the essence of the offence consists in its tendency to cause that description of pain which is felt by a person who knows himself to be the object of the unfavourable sentiments of his fellow creatures and the inconveniences to which a person who is the object of such unfavourable sentiments is exposed. 41 A. 311 p. 314.

—a prosecution is maintainable for the defamation of a deceased person but a suit for damages by the heir or nearest relative of the deceased person for defamatory words alleged to have caused damage to the piff. as a member of the same family is not maintainable. 5 B. 580.

Explanation 2. Imputation against company, association or collection of persons.

—Explanation 2 to s. 499 is intended to include a company or an association or collection of persons as such within the word 'person' used in the definition so that the latter should not be restricted to individuals. In this explanation the identity of the persons must be maintained and the imputation said to have been made of harming their reputation or the virtue of this explanation an imputation concerning an association of persons as such cannot justify a charge of defaming an individual. 29 C. W. N. 904. 90 I. C. 387; 42 C. L. J. 178; 26 Cr. L. J. 1539.

—it is doubtful if the police force at a particular place is such an association or collection of persons as is contemplated by this explanation. 29 C. W. N. 904; 90 I. C. 387; 42 C. L. J. 178; 26 Cr. L. J. 1539.

—an imputation against an association or collection of persons is not an offence under s. 499 unless it is an imputation of the nature of the offence of defaming a person. It is not an offence if it is an imputation of the nature of the offence of defaming a person. 3 Pat. L. T. 67 I. C. 609.

—where a newspaper article contained an imputation against the Hindu widows generally to the effect that "the country's widows to the number of nearly 30 millions were regarded as under God's curse sluts at home and prostitutes abroad", and the complainant preferred a complaint alleging that he was injured because of his widow relatives and the Magistrate and Sessions Judge held that the imputation was too wide to hurt any person and consequently dismissed the complaint, in revision the H. C. held that the complaint ought not to have been dismissed without giving the complainant an opportunity to substantiate the charge by admitting evidence and that consequently further inquiry should be directed. 55 C. 1280; 1929 Cal. 191; 115 I. C. 35; 30 Cr. L. J. 407.

Explanation 4. What imputation harms reputation ?

—the words "directly or indirectly" mean that the person defamed must either be abused in express terms, or the wording of the communication must convey such imputation as any person reading it must understand to impute misconduct or bad character. 7 A. 205 F. B. 9 A. 420

—it cannot be said that the person libelled should himself be the direct means of publishing the libel to others. 7 A. 205 p. 221 F. B.

—this explanation does not apply where the words used and forming the basis of a charge are per se defamatory. When an expression used verbally or in writing is doubtful as to its significance and some evidence is necessary to decide what the effect of that expression will be and whether it is calculated to harm a particular person's reputation, it is possible that the principle enounced in explanation 4 might and would with propriety be applied. 9 A. 420.

—but where at the time of a feast of the brother hood the accused declare that the complainant had been outcasted and was not one fit to sit down at the feast with other members of the brotherhood the accused was liable to be convicted under s. 499 I. —if individuals are not named in the libel nor are they specifically described but they are so described that they are known to all their neighbours as being the parties alluded to and if they are able to prove to the satisfaction of a jury that the party writing the libel did intend to allude to them, it would be unfortunate to find the law in a state which would prevent the party being protected against such libels. 1 C. —also where the complainant was described as a man with whom not even Turks, let alone Brahmins, could associate and the wedding of his daughter was characterised as a sinful carnival worthy of perdition—a moral crime involving disgrace degradation and degeneration it was held that the language used was unresstrained the object of the writer being to hold the complainant up to public execration. 9 I. C. 775: 4 Bur. L. T. 48: 12 Cr. L. J. 129.

—a statement that a person is excommunicated from the caste is defamatory and the fact that all Mahomedans are generally speaking of one caste does not make it any the less defamatory. 99 I. C. 943: 28 Cr. L. J. 207: 1927 Mad. 397

Exception 1. Imputation of truth which public good requires to be made.

—to entitle a person to the benefit of this exception the statements must not only be proved to be true but it must be shown that their publication was for the public good. Public good is the good of the general public as contra-distinguished from that of an individual. The denouncing of a Brahmin for providing alcoholic refreshment at a wedding reception for those of his guests who desired to partake of such beverages, is not "for the public good." 12 Cr. L. J. 129: 2 I. C. 775: 4 Bur. L. T. 48.

—where a false and defamatory imputation was published by the accused and the imputation was based on very flimsy materials

contd.

—there is a distinction between "fair comment" based on well known or admitted facts and the assertion of unsubstantial facts for comment. Where comments are made on allegations of facts which do not exist, the very foundation of the plea disappears. A wilful misrepresentation or any misstatement of fact the truth of which an editor could have discovered on proper inquiries cannot support the plea "of fair comment" as an editor must make due inquiries as to its truth before disseminating the statement of those facts. 23 S. L. R. 216: 1923 Sind 90. 116 I. C. 99: 30 Cr. L. J. 548.

—"fair comment" is not an expression used in any of the exceptions to the section. It may however be taken to convey the same idea which the expression "to express in good faith any opinion" in exceptions 2, 3, 5, and 6 of the section is meant to convey. 9 Mys. L. J. 120.

—an editor should be most watchful not to publish defamatory attacks upon individuals unless he first takes reasonable pains to ascertain that there are strong and cogent grounds for believing the information, which is sent to him, to be true. 26 A. L. J. 509: 1928 All. 321: 10 A. I. Cr. R. 145.

—publication of a defamatory "rumour" is as actionable as if the statement were published without qualification and it is no defence to a civil suit or criminal prosecution that the person who published the libel or slander did not believe it; but he had no intention of harming another, nor is it a person publishing . . .

—It is no part of the journalist's duty to publish every foul rumour that he reported to him. Where the truth can be elucidated by a few inquiries he ought to do so. 3 Pat. L. T. 209: 1 Pat. 414: 1922 Pat. 117: 1922 Pat. 101: 23 Cr. L. J. 433: 67 I. C. 609.

—when the accused, an editor of a newspaper published defamatory matters under the guise of rumours and did not express regret, further aggravated the offence by writing a letter, he should be severely sentenced. 26 A. L. J. 509: 1928 All. 321 117 I. C. 356: 30 Cr. L. J. 766.

—where the editor of a newspaper published a defamatory article imputing indecency and habitual drunkenness to a person holding high offices and when the latter called on the editor to apologize he pleaded justification by truth but the same was not established in the trial, he was guilty under s. 500 I. S. 499. Exception 2. Expression in good faith of opinion respecting conduct of public servant.

—the expression "opinions in good faith" means that in order to express an opinion in good faith the person who holds it must have taken care and attention in forming it, 26 C. L. J. 401: 45 I. C. 113: 19 Cr. L. J. 449, the mere absence of ill-will is not sufficient. 1 Weir 613.

—in a case where the accused was put on his trial for a defamatory statement contained in a petition to the Magistrate it was held that in dealing with the question of good faith the proper point to be decided was not whether the allegation put forward by the accused in support of the defamation were in substance true but whether he was informed and had good reason, after due care and attention, to believe that such allegation was true 4 C. 124

—if a person undertakes to criticise the acts of a public man he must take care not to assert anything untrue as the basis of criticism and he is bound not to conceal wilfully anything which would show that the criticism is not well-founded. 26 C. L. J. 345: 44 I. C. 930: 19 Cr. L. J. 402.

—an expression of opinion in good faith is a criticism and any fair criticism is justifiable and is not a contempt, if expressed in good faith. 26 C. L. J. 401: 45 I. C. 113: 19 Cr. L. J. 449.

—false statements published in newspapers are not fair criticism. If anonymous letters are sent to the press containing false statements the press is responsible for them if the name of the author is not given up. 26 C. L. J. 401: 45 I. C. 113: 19 Cr. L. J. 449.

—no one has right of appeal to the press by bringing false accusation founded on wilful misstatements. 26 C. L. J. 401: 45 I. C. 113: 19 Cr. L. J. 449.

—every subject has a right to comment on those acts of the public men which concern him as a subject of the realm if he does not make his comment a cloak for malice and slander. A writer in a public paper has the same right as any other person. Where a person makes the public conduct of a public man the subject of comment and it is for the public good, he is not liable to an action if the comments are made honestly, and he honestly believes the facts to be as he states them and there is no wilful misrepresentation of fact or any misstatement which he must have known to be a misstatement if he had exercised ordinary care. 1 B. H. C. App. 85, 3 A. 815.

—where the accused, an editor of a newspaper published an article in which he made certain remarks as to the complainant's antecedent referring to a criminal proceeding against him but which was subsequently withdrawn, it was held that the statement made by the accused did not contain the truth but only half-truth and it was not for public good that an imputation should be conveyed by a statement which was misleading because it was incomplete. 4 B. 298.

S. 499. Exception 3. Expression in good faith of opinion respecting conduct of person touching any public question —a fair comment must be based upon facts and a person cannot invent facts and express his opinions upon such invented facts. The conduct of a public man or of a man in his public character cannot be assailed as dishonest, simply because the writer fancies that such conduct is open to suspicion. 19 Cr. L. J. 129; 43 I. C. 417 (Rang)

—the moment an allegation is shown to be based upon a misstatement of facts it is impossible to justify it on the ground of fair comments. 93 I. C. 431; 1927 All 116; 27 Cr. L. J. 1361.

—where the complainant, a medical man solicited the public by an advertisement to subscribe to a hospital of which he was the surgeon in charge stating the number of successful operations performed by him and the accused who was the editor of a medical journal made a criticism of the advertisement, it was held that the accused was protected under third, sixth and ninth exceptions in as much as the advertisement had the effect of making the hospital a "public question" and submitting it to the "judgment of the public" and the accused expressed himself in good faith. 3 A. 342.

—in discussing the claims of a person for Municipal office as councillor one is entitled to make remarks in the interests of the public, so long as he abstained from aspersing the private character of the former. 1914 M. W. N. 331; 15 Cr. L. J. 357 23 I. C. 725

—where the accused, a Municipal Councillor published in a newspaper a letter giving what purported to be a verbatim account of an incident, that took place in a meeting of the Municipality and on the complainant's own admission the report was found to be substantially true, held that the occasion was privileged and the accused was protected under this exception 8 S. L. R. A. 143; 16 Cr. L. J. 141 27 I. C. 205

—where a matter is of public interest the court ought not to weigh any comment on it in a fine scale; some allowance must be made for even intemperate language, provided however, that the writer keeps himself within the bound of substantial proof and does not misrepresent or suppress any fact 13 Bom. L. R. 1187; 12 Cr. L. J. 595. 12 I. C. 971.

—a line must be drawn between hostile criticism on a man's public conduct and the motives by which that conduct may be supposed to have been influenced; there is no right to impute to a man in his conduct as a citizen, even though it be open to disapprobation, any base, sordid, dishonest or wicked motive without any just cause for any such imputation. Any mistaken belief in the existence of any such motive is no justification and will be no defence to a charge of defamation. 76 I. C. 230.

S. 499. Exception 3. Expression in good faith of opinion respecting conduct of person touching any public question—contd.

—when the imputation is made in good faith for the protection of the social and spiritual interests of the community it is exempted. 22 O. 46, Rat. Un. Cr. 387.

Exception 4. Publication of true report of proceedings of courts.

—where the accused, a trustee of a temple was charged for a statement in connection with an appointment in the temple that the complainant who used to perform worship in a temple had been convicted and sent to jail for the theft of idol, it was held that the statement was true and the alleged defamatory statement was no more than the publication of the results of proceedings in a court of justice which is specially declared to be no defamation by Exception 4 to sec. 499 I. P. C 26 M. 464.

Exception 5. Expression in good faith of opinion respecting merits of case decided in court or conduct of witnesses and others concerned.

—when immediately after the termination of the proceedings under s. 506 I. P. C. the accused, in answer to a query of his pleader as to the origin of the dispute which had led to the sec. 506 case, stated that the real cause of the dispute was that at some caste-feast, there had been some quarrel between parties owing to the accused's party having said that complainant's daughter-in-law had eloped with some body, held that the statement made by the accused did not come within the definition of defamation in s. 499 I. P. C. because he did not make any imputation with the intention of harming the reputation of any body. He made it clearly in answer to a very natural question put to him by his legal adviser at a time when the relationship of legal adviser and client cannot be said to have ceased. 13 C. W. N. 1087. 1 Cr. O. L. 44.

Exception 6. Expression in good faith of opinion respecting merits of public performance.

—whether fair comment is to be regarded as falling under a branch of the law of privilege or not, it cannot excuse an injury arising not from the mere act of criticism but from a state of mind in the critic which is in itself unjustifiable, and the excuse may be so forfeited either by reason of an evil intent in him or by reason of mere recklessness in making unwarrantable assertion. For then the comment would not be fair comment at all. This clearly follows from the language of the exception to s. 499 I. P. C. which by requiring the "good faith" defined in s. 52 I. P. C. includes all that is done without due care and attention as well as that done with injurious intention. The right of fair comment involves two essentials, first that the imputation should be comment on the work criticised and second that it should be fair, that is to say, if it professes to be an inference drawn from the contents of that work, it must be an inference which it is possible to draw therefrom. 31 B 293; 9 Bom. L. R. 230.

—“good faith” requires not logical infallibility but due care and attention. But how far erroneous actions and statements are to be imported to want of due care and caution must in each case be considered with reference to the general circumstances and the capacity and intelligence of the person whose conduct is in question. It is only to be expected that the honest conclusions of a calm and philosophical mind may differ very largely from the honest conclusions of a person excited by sectarian zeal and untrained to habits of precise reasoning. 31 B. 293 9 Bom. their brethren in England. Imputation on the character of a witness made in good faith and for the protection of the interest of the client is not defamatory. Good faith will be presumed and opportunity should be given to offer explanation before summons is issued. While counsels have their privileges they have also their responsibilities and they ought never abuse their privileges. There may be circumstances which may show that the question or remark objected to was made wantonly or from malice or from private motive but the greatest care ought to be taken to inquire into the circumstances. 35 C. 85 : 46 C. L. J. 227. 1927 Cal. 823 : 28 Cr. L. J. 877 : 104 f. C. 717.

—it is not defamation for a pleader to cross-examine a witness, if it appears that the question assumed a state of facts to be true, which was not really so, if it is based on facts known to the pleader, which knowledge was used in apparent good faith. In the morass of this country, where instructions, to the personal knowledge of one, are very commonly inaccurate and misleading, a pleader would certainly be at least as much justified in acting on his own recollection as on specific instruction and when he draws merely a wrong inference from a fact, that of itself, in the absence of any malice, should not take him out of the ninth exception. 36 C. 375. 13 C. W. N. 340. 9 C. L. J. 259. 9 Cr. L. J. 165 : 1 I. C. 147, (19 Bom. 340, 9 Bom. L. R. 1287) fol.

—when a pleader is charged with defamation in respect of words, spoken or written, while performing his duty as a pleader, the court ought to presume good faith and not hold him criminally liable, unless there is satisfactory evidence of actual malice and unless there is cogent proof that unfair advantage was taken of his position as pleader for an indirect purpose. 9 Bom. L. R. 1287.

—a pleader is entitled to the presumption that the questions he asks in cross-examination are asked in good faith for the protection of the interest of the client. The presumption, therefore, is that a question asked in cross-examination making an imputation, affords no ground for a criminal prosecution. To rebut the presumption of good faith, there must be convicting evidence that the pleader was actuated by an improper motive personal to himself and not by a desire to protect or further the interest of his client in the cause. It is not sufficient merely to allege that the client knew the imputation to be untrue. Therefore where a pleader for the accused asked a prosecution witness in cross-examination whether he smoked ganja, he is not liable to be prosecuted for defamation by the witness where no improper motive on the part of the pleader is alleged. 41 C. 314. 18 C. Jurisdiction —to maintain a prosecution in a particular court, there must be a publication to a stranger of the libel within the jurisdiction of the court. Where the alleged libel was contained in a letter written from Bangalore to England, to maintain a prosecution in the Bangalore Court, there must be evidence that the letter was handed over to somebody at Bangalore to be taken to the addressee or that it was posted at Bangalore. A letter is deemed to be published both where it is posted and where it is received and opened and where it is alleged to have been posted within the jurisdiction such allegation must be proved. 1923 M. —in an action for damages for libel or slander evidence may be given in mitigation of damages to show that the plff. had generally bad character. Similarly in criminal prosecution where it is essential, in order to constitute the offence of defamation, that the person who makes or publishes the imputation complained of, should intend to harm, or know or have reason to believe that the imputation will harm the reputation of the person concerning whom it is made or published, the question what reputation the complainant had, is relevant. Therefore, where it is alleged that the accused had defamed the complainant by saying that the accused had been compelled to pay the complainant, a public servant, a bribe, evidence that complainant had the bad reputation of being bribe-taker cannot be excluded as such evidence would show that the imputation could not damage his reputation as he had none to lose. In any event proof of complainant's bad reputation would affect the sentence to be passed in case of conviction. 4 Lah. 55; 73 I. C. 805; 24 Cr. L. J. 693; 1923 Lab. 235.

S. 508. (Act caused by inducing person to believe that he will be rendered an object of the Divine displeasure)—

—the words of this section seem to imply that the threat must be one which can be put into execution by the person threatening. It is not necessary that the injury should be inflicted by the offender, it is sufficient if he can cause it to be inflicted by some agency and the infliction of it could be avoided by some act or omission that the person threatening desires. The punishment by God is not one that the accused could cause to be inflicted in the present case or the execution of which he could avoid. This section requires that by some act of the offender the person warned must be led to believe that he will become or be rendered the object of Divine displeasure. To apply the section some future act on the part of the accused is necessary. 49 M. 774; 26 Cr. L. J. 755; 1925 Mad. 480; 86 I. C. 339; 1925 M. W. N. 113. 48 M. L. J. 190.

—to apply this section it must be shown that the accused threatened to do a future act or illegally to omit to do an act and that by such threat he induced or attempted to induce the person threatened to believe that by that act or illegal omission the person threatened or some one in whom the person threatened was interested, would become an object of Divine displeasure. 6 M. 381 p. 394.

S. 509. (Word, gesture or act intended to insult the modesty of a woman).

—when a man does an act knowing that in the natural course of events a certain result will follow he intends to bring about that result. 4 Bom. L. R. 280.

J. 108, 1923 P. 307, while an attempt is the direct movement towards the commission after the preparations are made. In the case of mere preparation the court assumes that better reasons would prevail at any moment and the man would change his intention to commit a crime before the actual consummation thereof. 65 I. C. 492; 32 Cr. L. J. 108.

—the real difficulty in distinguishing between preparation and attempt arises in determining where a given act or set of acts passes from the former stage into the latter. Where the commission of an offence requires the performance of a series of acts and the person commences this series with the view to carry it out to its completion, he has in the language of s. 511 I. P. O. done an act towards the commission of the offence in the attempt to commit the offence. 5 N. L. J. 15; 1922 Nag. 40; 65 I. C. 994; 23 Cr. L. J. 210, 2 A. 105 Ref.

—an approver is a man of the very lowest character who has thrown to the wolves his former associates and friends in order to save his own skin, and by this betrayal he has purchased his liberty. He is a criminal himself and his evidence must be received with very great deal of caution if not suspicion. It should also be noted that an approver can easily substitute an innocent man for the person who was actually participating with him in a particular crime. That danger must be guarded against and the prosecution must prove not only that the approver had an accomplice but his accomplice was as a matter of fact the accused persons and no other. Alternative defence is not illegal.

—though by setting up an inconsistent defence the defence case becomes considerably weaker, there is nothing illegal in setting up an alternative and inconsistent defence and where the accused's pleader was not allowed to argue the alternative defence before the jury, the trial must be held to be vitiated. 27 C. Amendment of proceeding, necessity of notice to parties.

—it is an elementary right of a party when criminal proceedings started against him are amended that he should have notice thereof, and in the absence of such notice, the trial is vitiated. 1935 Cal 263 81 I. C. 162 25 Cr. L. J. 674.

Appellate Court when can distrust the decision of the trial Court

—when the decision of a criminal court in substance appears to be correct an appeal court should endeavour to uphold the decision even in cases where the rules of procedure by which the trial is to be regulated have been transgressed. Rules and Regulations are intended to be handmaid and not the mistress of the law; in criminal proceedings it is of the utmost importance that a decision just and reasonable on the merits should not be disturbed because in the course of proceedings some flaw can be detected that is not fundamental and which is not proved to have worked injustice to the accused, although it may constitute a breach of the rules of criminal procedure. 57 C. 1233: 51 C. L. J. 171: 34 C. W. N. 296: 1930 Cr. C. 212. 31 Cr. L. J. 536: 1930 Cal. 217: 123 I. C. 664. F. B.

Appeal in two cases should be heard separately.

—where the appellate court tried two appeals preferred by an accused person as one case and having made up his mind that there were two contradictory stories, he found which of the two was true and allowed one of the appeals and dismissed the other, held that it was the duty of the judge to hear each appeal separately and to deal with it on its merits. 32 C. W. N. 328: 47 C. L. J. 211: 109 I. C. 240: 29 Cr. L. J. 512. 1928 Cal. 230.

Arguments of the counsel, right of the accused.

—though the Criminal Procedure Code nowhere provides specifically for the accused's right to be heard in argument, no criminal Court should refuse such a right. 1925 All. 282: 86 I. C. 458: 26 Cr. L. J. 810.

Charges, framing of, Court cannot go outside.

—in a criminal trial the accused has to defend himself on the charge framed against him and on no other and the court cannot speculate as to what all parties understood. 1930 M. W. N. 249 F. B.

Charges, joinder of.

—where the charges were three in number but really four in substance but all the allegations were there and the accused were in no way prejudiced, held that the trial was not vitiated. 48 C. L. J. 534 : 113 I. C. 851 : 1929 Cal. 80 : 30 Cr. L. J. 241.

Chemical examination of blood stained exhibits.

—in a trial for murder where part of the prosecution story is that blood stained clothes were recovered and sent to the Chemical Examiner, it is essential to prove that ordinary diligence was exercised in despatching the goods without delay. There must also be evidence concerning the parcels which reached the Chemical Examiner with those which were despatched. This is not a mere technical defect. 26 Cr. L. J. 1420 : 26 Punj. L. R. 748 : 89 I. C. 844.

Child's testimony.

—there is no more dangerous witness than a young child. Any mistakes or discrepancies in their statements are ascribed to innocence or failure to understand, and undue weight is often given to what is merely a well taught lesson. Children have good memories and are easily taught stories and live in the belief that they become convinced that which they have been told. 878 : 32 Cr. L. J. 48 :

1930 Cr. C. 946

Civil case and Criminal case, distinction between.

—it is the duty of every criminal Court to get to the bottom of a case and to see that every scrap of relevant evidence is brought before it and that justice is done. It may be possibly different in the case of a civil court trying a civil suit, where it is the duty of the parties to place their case as they think best before the Court. 43 A. 283 : 19 A. L. J. 196 : 22 Cr. L. J. 210 : 60 I. C. 322.

—unlike a civil suit in which the court is confined more or less to the pleadings, in a criminal case before a conviction is recorded it always has to be seen whether the proved or admitted facts bring the case within an exception which takes it out of the offence defined. The burden of proving such facts is of course on the accused. 56 C. 1013 : 33 C. W. N. 446 : 1929 Cal. 340.

—where a criminal case is launched on the basis of a civil dispute between the parties it would be proper for the Magistrate to consider whether or not the case was of a civil nature and if he comes to the conclusion that only a civil wrong had been committed he should have said so and dealt with the case accordingly. If on the other hand, he was of opinion, that a criminal offence had been committed, though he might refer to the evidence in a manner equa

C. 194.

Deposition of accused in civil if can be used in criminal case.

—where the accused in a case of forgery and conspiracy had previously deposed in a civil court as to the genuineness of the document, held that though the statement could not be used as confession, the jury if independently satisfied that the documents are not genuine, the evidence is to be regarded as having high evidentiary value upon the question of intention whether or not they are in conspiracy. 1929 Cal. 539: 1929 Cr. C. 194.

Documents found in possession of accused, admissibility of.

—in order to render documents found in the possession of a person admissible against him as proof of their contents, it is necessary to show that such person has in some manner identified himself with or in other words, has, by any act, speech or writing, manifested an acquaintance with and knowledge of the contents of all or any of the documents. The rule would apply more strongly where, as in this case, some of the papers and letters were received by and others written by, the person against whom they are sought to be used. 39 C. 119: 13 Cr. L. J. 433: 15 I. O. 65, 37 C. 467 Fol.

—no criminal court is justified in brushing aside the documents to which the accused are parties when the accused themselves file those documents in court along with their statements. 55 M. L. J. 624: 1923 M. W. N. 782: 1923 Mad. 1135: 28 L. W. 509: 112 I. C. 565: 29 Cr. L. J. 1041.

Dropping proceedings

—it is for the Crown to consider whether the case is a fit one in which the proceedings should be allowed to go on, or whether it is proper to drop the proceedings. It is not competent for the High Court to quash the proceedings on the ground that the original complaint was made by the accused long ago and the accused is harassed thereby. 7 P. L. T. 383 : 95 L. C. 929 : 27 Cr. L. J. 849 : 1926 Pat. 302 : 5 Pat. 452.

Escape from custody.

—escape from custody after conviction is not a matter which should influence Court in arriving at the amount of punishment to be inflicted. 1926 Lah. 617 : 27 Cr. L. J. 944 : 96 L. C. 400

Evidence of near relations, value of.

—if the evidence of men who happen to be either relations or friends of a murdered man is to be discarded simply on the ground that on account of their relationship or friendship they cannot be considered as independent and reliable witnesses, then the court shall have to fall back either on the evidence of the enemies or of total strangers who, in many cases, would have no business to be present at the time when and at the place where the crime is committed. 1931 Lah. 38 : 130 L. C. 410 : 32 Cr. L. J. 522 : 32 P. L. R. 259 : 1931 Cr. C. 102.

Evidence in one case if can be used in another case.

—depositions taken in one case cannot be copied and used in another case. 36 C. L. J. 417.

—where two separate trials were held in respect of the same accused and the evidence taken in one case was used in the other case, the procedure amounted to a serious irregularity. 1928 Lah. 380 : 10 Lah. L. J. 389 : 29 Cr. L. J. 282 : 107 L. C. 766.

—but there is nothing illegal or irregular in having the depositions which were given by the defence witnesses when they were examined as prosecution witnesses in a counter-case filed as evidence on behalf of the defence with the consent of the prosecution, if these defence witnesses were called and examined in the presence of the accused and sworn to the truth of their previous deposition. 53 M. 775 : 1930 M. Executive consideration must be eliminated.

—a Magistrate exercising judicial functions has to divest himself of his executive powers and his judicial pronouncements should not be disfigured by an entry as required under the Police Manual particularly as it is based upon the Magistrate's personal impression drawn from irrelevant matters which the accused has no opportunity to meet 3 Pat. —it is a matter for surprise that a judicial officer occupying the position of a District Magistrate does not see the propriety of holding private conferences with the prosecuting officers in respect of a criminal case upon which he had to adjudicate. 1928 Lah. 125: 29 Punj. L. R. 14: 29 Cr. L. J. 212: 9 A. I. Cr. R. 505.

Expert evidence.

—it cannot be laid down as a rule of law that it is unsafe to base a conviction on the uncorroborated testimony of a finger print expert. The true rule seems to be one of caution, that is to say, that the Court must not take the expert's opinion for granted, but it must examine his evidence in order to satisfy itself that there can be no mistake and the responsibility is all the greater when there is no other evidence to corroborate the expert. 35 C. W. N. 863: 1931 Cal. 411: 1931 Cr. C. 593

—It is not correct to lay down that a conviction based on finger prints is absolutely unsafe. Where finger prints are clear an argument by way of deduction can be as sure a foundation for a conclusion as any based on direct evidence. 46 M. 715, 1923 Mad. 178, 1928 Pat. 129, 31 Cr. L. —evidence of comparison of handwriting is often extremely dangerous. Of all methods of proving a document that of comparison of handwriting by an inexperienced witness is the most unsatisfactory. The essence of a successful forgery is that it should resemble the original as closely as possible. First information report, importance of.

—a discrepancy between a first information report and dying declaration makes it incumbent on the Court to examine both pieces of evidence with extreme care, but such a discrepancy does not render the dying declaration wholly unreliable. 71 I. C. 593 : 24 Cr. L. J. 177.

—first information reports are not substantial evidence of the facts recorded in them and a conviction cannot be based on them, they can be used to corroborate the witnesses who made them showing that they told the same story at the first possible occasion. If they told a different story in Court, it can be used to contradict them or discredit their testimony. But it is not legitimate for a court when witnesses tell a different story on the witness box and contradict the report made by them, to discard the evidence given by them on oaths and rely on the report. 74 I. C. 716 : 24 Cr. L. J. 812.

—the first information report should not be used as substantive evidence. It can only be used to corroborate or contradict the maker thereof. It cannot be used to contradict numerous other witnesses who are unanimous that a certain person was present at the place of the occurrence. 1928 Lab. 507 : 103 I. C. 162 : 29 Cr. L. J. 343 : 9 A. I. Where the court is called upon to review a case under cl. 26 of the Letters Patent, it would accept as unquestionable the statement of the trial Judge as to what took place before him in court, (21 C. Cl. 26 Letters Patent though silent as to the procedure to be followed by the Advocate General when he is called upon to grant a certificate, requires that the certificate should reflect the judgment of the Advocate General and is presumably granted in the interests of justice, after a consideration of all the available materials. If that judgment is founded on incomplete materials or inaccurate allegations, its weight is diminished. In a case where the error ascribed to the Judge depends on the evidence adduced at the trial, it is desirable that the notes of the evidence, as recorded by the Judge, should be laid before the Advocate General when he is asked to grant certificate. The certificate of the Advocate General should be granted after he has seen the Crown and has ascertained whose accuracy had been proved. 28 C. W. N.

Major offence and minor offence constituted by same act.

—the proposition that where a particular set of acts or omissions constitute an offence under the general law and also under a special law the prosecution should be under the special law, is confined to cases where the offences are coincident or are practically that assuming that the minor offence under sec. 64 of the Post Office Act was proved, it was not illegal to convict the accused for the major offence only. 1930 Pat. 622 : 9 Pat. 126 : 125 I. C. 770 : 11 Pat. L. T. 224 : 31 Cr. L. J. 934 : 1930 Cr. C. 1214.

Map, preparation of, in criminal case.

—a person who prepares a map for use in a criminal case ought not to put upon it anything more than what he sees himself. Particulars derived from witnesses examined on the spot should not be noted on the body of the map but on a separate sheet of paper annexed to the map as an index thereto 28 C. W. Medical evidence is not always formal.

—it cannot be said as a general rule that medical evidence is always formal. 1922 Pat. 299.

—medical experts and others such as Judges who have to form opinions and exercise their judgment should have regard primarily to the facts and not draw upon their imagination. Otherwise the administration of justice would depend upon their individual idiosyncrasies and become unstable and unworkable. 32 C. W. N. 783.

—In cases of murder or of man slaughter it is unreasonable to expect the jury to convict if a proper exposition and explanation of the medical evidence is not given visu voce by a doctor who deal with the matter and satisfy the jury. A jury will sometimes find points which are really against the prosecution but which escape the notice of learned judges and public prosecutors. 56 : 566 : 33 C. W. N. 632 : 1929 Cal. 244 : 50 C. L. Minimising offence in order to try summarily.

—there is no authority for the proposition that the police are empowered to prevent only cognizable offence. Some colour is given to the proposition by sec. 149 Cr. P. C. which provides only for the prevention of cognizable offences by the police. But sec. 23 of the Police Act appears to give wider powers for preventing offences in general. The word "offences" in that sec. is not defined in the Police Act and it does not appear to be governed by the definition of "offences" in sec. 40 of the I. P. C. enacted in the previous year. The Police Act was clearly intended to give the police force, then newly formed, extensive powers of preventing breaches of the law, and it is not outside their powers to stop a pug which is being held without a licence. 8 L. Where a police constable was dealt with by his departmental superiors under s. 7 of the Police Act, for having accepted a bribe, he might also be tried and punished for the same offence under s. 163 I. S. 42. (Limitation of actions).

—on the passing of the Limitation Act (IX of 1871) that part of sec. 42 of the Police Act which provides a period of three months for suits contemplated by it was repealed with the result that such suits become subject to the general law of limitation contained in the Limitation Act and the special provision of limitation contained in s. 42 Police Act ceased to be operative. 1930 All. 742.

—s. 42 refers to actions for "anything done or intended to be done under the provisions or under the general police powers." Where a suit has been brought against police officer for damages for something done in the exercise of his powers under Cr. P. Code, Police Act, s. 42 does not apply. 1930 All. 742, 31 I. C. 173 fol.

—a police officer has no power to arrest for an offence of selling liquor after hours when no report had been made about the commission of such offence. Sec. 42 of the Police Act is no bar to the trial of a Sub-Inspector for such an illegal arrest when the complaint was made against him four or five days after the alleged offence was committed. 1922 All. 264; 65 I. C. 433; 23 Cr. L. J. 81.

—the section does not apply to cases under s. 29. 7 N. W. P. 239.

—unless an objection as to want of notice is taken in the first court, a suit ought not to be dismissed. 8 W. R. 425.

—no notice is necessary where the defendant did not act in good faith in pursuance of the law, but took advantage of his position to commit illegal and tortuous acts, maliciously and without cause. 26 A. 220.

PROSECUTION AND DEFENCE CASE.Prosecution case.

—where the party comes into court with a story which cannot be believed as to its essential details, it is impossible to rely on a part of the story for the purpose of conviction. 47 I. C. 73; 19 Cr. L. J. 877; 5 Pat. L. W. 157; 1918 Pat. 288.

above principle that a court the main should not convict of each case 50 I. C. 982;

—it is not a correct proposition of law to lay down that where the court finds the Crown case to be substantially untrue, although there is a residuum of true and trustworthy evidence of the prosecution case with regard to some other charge incidental to the main charge against the accused, nevertheless the accused must be acquitted even on this charge also. above case

—the un-corroborated testimony of a witness which is disbelieved as to one accused cannot be the basis of a conviction as regards another accused in the same proceeding. 9 N. L. J. 194.

Defence Case.

—the statement made by an accused person cannot be presumed to be false. It is for the prosecution to prove that it is false, mere weakness in the defence story or even suspicious features in that story are not enough to show that it is false. The weakness of the defence is no ground for finding the accused to be guilty. 72 I. C. 538 : 44 M. L. J. 243 : 1923 Mad. 364 : 24 Cr. L. J. 426, 49 I. C. 925 : 20 Cr. L. J. 253, 20 C. W. N. 550 : 40 I. C. 698 : 18 Cr. L. J. 698 42 C. 784.

—although by setting up an inconsistent defence the defence case becomes considerably weaker, there is nothing illegal in setting up an alternative and inconsistent defence and when the accused's alternative defence before the court is not proved. 27 C. W. N. 820 : 38 C. L.

—if the case for the prosecution is false on the whole the accused is entitled to be acquitted whether his defence is true or false. 25 C. W. N. 838 : 23 Cr. L. J. 220 : 65 I. C. 1004.

—prosecution is not entitled to succeed merely by proving the falsity of defence story. 91 I. C. 514 : 27 Cr. L. J. 112 : 1926 Lah. 272.

RULINGS WHEN CONFLICTING.

17 B. 555.

—a Lower Court is bound to follow the concurrent decisions of the court to which it is immediately subordinate and is not at liberty to adopt a contrary opinion expressed by another High Court. 10 C. 82.

—a Magistrate should not follow a ruling of a H. C. to which he is subordinate when he has a ruling of the H. C. of his own. 15. cannot comment on 1. W. N. 1.

SPY.Engineering an offence.

—to send a person to spy out whether a crime is being committed and to come back with information that it is being committed is one thing, but to engineer an offence in order to find out whether a person when tempted will commit the offence is quite a different thing. The practice is to be strongly deprecated. 33 I. C. 315 : 17 Cr. L. J. 139.

Evidence of a spy how far relevant.

Mandatory or imperative and directory.

—the principle to be applied in considering whether the provisions of a Statute or an Act are imperative or directory is this: the court must look to the subject matter, consider the importance of the provision that has been disregarded and the relation of that provision to the general object intended to be secured by the Act; and upon a review of the case in that aspect decide whether the matter is what is called imperative or only directory. 38 C. C. 175 : 1928 Lah. 609, F. B.

(1) Construction of statutes—contd.Meaning of certain words.

—words are presumed to be used in their popular meaning unless otherwise expressly provided. 16 S. L. R. 112 : 71 I. C. 161 F. B., 47 B. 843.

—in a Code which deals with both the words "suits" and "appeals" it cannot be said that the word "suit" has been used in the same sense as "appeal," 139 I. C. 871 : I. R. 1931 Ali. 439.

—in construing statutes it is sometimes necessary to read the conjunctions 'or' and 'and' one for the other. 87 I. C. 213 : 1925 Cal. 1067.

—there is no authority for the proposition that the word "may" can, in any connection, be read as meaning "shall" though the word "shall" may, under certain circumstances, be substituted for the word "may" 21 C. 832, 3 C. 47 P. C.

—the word "may" does not have the force of "shall" except where statute directs the doing of a thing for the sake of justice or the public good. 1930 Rang. 297 : 127 I. C. 721 : 8 Rang. 333 : I. A. 1930 Rang. 401. F. B.

—prima facie the word "may" is an enabling word, but there is no doubt that under certain circumstance enabling words may have a compulsory force, 1931 Pat 1 : 130 I. C. 785 : 12 Pat. L. T. 127 : I. R. 1931 Pat. 193.

—there is great deal of difference between "disposal" and decision of a case and a 'case' is something less definite than a 'suit.' 20 C. W. N. 1080 : 13 C. W. N. 403, 15 C. W. N. 666.

—"discretion" means when it is said that something is to be done within the discretion of the authorities that something is to be done according to the rules of reason and justice not according to private opinion, according to law and not honour. 48 B. 87 : 26 Bom L. R. I : 1924 Bom I.

Administrative despatches cannot be looked into.

—in construing the terms of an enactment Administrative despatches cannot be looked into. 51 B. 516 : 29 Bom. L. R. 498 : 104 I. C. 8 : 1927 Bom. 278 F. B.

Report of the Select Committee, reference to.

—in interpreting the statutory provision reference to the Report of the Select Committee and proceedings of Legislature is not permissible 47 C. L. J. 66 : 103 I. C. 853 : 1927 Cal. 821, 27 C. W. N. 115 : 36 C. L. J. 220. 1928 Lah. 337, 119 I. C. 265 : 30 Cr. L. J. 1019 : 1929 Cr. C. 205 : 1929 Lah. 641, nor reference to the debates in the Council is permissible. 1928 Lah 337.

—Bill cannot be referred to. 55 C. 67 : 103 I. C. 662 : 1927 Cal. 763.

—in interpreting the section of the book Reports of the Indian Law Commission may be referred to. 8 B. 241, 18 B. 616, 625, 7 A. 44, 17 C. 852 19 W. R. 48, 53.

Proceeding of Legislature, reference to.

—in interpreting a statute reference should not be made to the proceedings of the legislature which result in the provisions —In construing a statute the court cannot look into the proceedings of the legislature to see what took place during passage of the Bill or what was the reason for the insertion of a particular clause. 53 C. 929. 44 C. L. J 350: 1927 Cal. 149: 98 I. C. 116 (Cr.), 22 C. 188 P. C. Rel. on.

—Proceedings of the Legislative Council and the Reports of the Select Committees of the Legislative Council cannot be referred to 22 B 125, 128, 22 Bom. L. R. 503 P. C. contra, 22 M. 49, 504.

—Proceedings of the Legislative Council should not be referred to determine the true interpretation of the language of a section which should be interpreted as it stands 50 A, 348; 108 I C. 573; 192d All 124; 25 A. L. J. 1061.

—enactment overrides preamble. 9 Lab. 360 : 1928 Lab. 35.

—in case of ambiguity or where it is necessary to interpret the Act the preamble of an Act may be referred to but definite and unambiguous words cannot be strained by such reference simply because their natural interpretation would seem to extend the scope of the Act. 92 I. Schedules annexed to an Act.

—schedules annexed to an Act and the heading under which they are placed are parts of the enactment but if the language of the enactment is clear they are not to be taken into consideration. 30 C. W. N. 334 : 93 I. C. 909 : 1926 Cal. 638.

Heading of the Chapter.

—in construing a section the heading of the Chapter is not to be taken into consideration if the language of the section is clear, 48 M. 395 : 86 I. C. 449 : 43 M. L. J. 290, 47 A. 756 : 89 I. C. 122 : 1925 All. 767.

Illustration.

—illustration does not control the section. 1 All. 34, 36, 15 B. 491, 24 C. W. N. 982, 32 C. L. J. 24 The power of the court under s. 22 of the specific Relief Act should not be cut down by looking into the illustrations attached to the section. 1930 M. W. N. 638. contra, it forms the part of the statute. 21 Bom. L. R. 558 P. C.

—the court should accept, if that can be done, illustrations given under the section as being of value in the construction of the text. To warrant the rejection of illustrations on the ground of repugnancy with the section requires a special case, 55 C. 154 : 109 I. C. 752 : 1928 Cal. 204.

Marginal notes.

—Marginal notes are not parts of the section but there is no reason why they should not be consistent with the sections themselves. 41 C. L. J. 45 : 29 C. W. N. 151 : 52 C. 463 : 85 I. C. 135 : 1925 Cal. 329.

—when the language is not clear the court may look to the marginal note to see what the draft of the section is. 45 M. L. J. 731, 26 A. 393, 406, 23 C. 55, 59, 11 Bom. L. R. 576 P. C., 2 Bom. L. R. 218, 1 P. L. T. 11, 47 A. 637 : 88 I. C. 768 : 23 A. L. J. 561 F. B.

—marginal notes cannot be referred to. 26 All. 393, 406, 51 M. L. J. 704, 26 A. 393, P. C., 50 M. 733 : 1927 Mad. 156, 26 Bom. L. R. 418 : 103 I. C. 225 : 1927 Bom. 424, 11 Bom. L. R. 576 P. Another Full Bench of the Allahabad H. C. has recently held that the marginal notes can be referred for the exposition of the meaning of a section, if the marginal notes have been inserted by or under the authority of the Legislature. 51 A. 411 : 27 A. L. J. 290 : 113 I. C. 442 : 1929 All. 53 F. B.

—a Rule framed under the Act should not be referred to for the purpose of construing an Act. The construction of an Act must depend upon the meaning which the court attributes to the words used by the Legislature. 53 C. 615 : 30 C. W. N. 803 : 43 C. L. J. 425 : 1926 Cal. 856 : 96 I. C. 72.

—where the Act confers right in general terms rules restricting such rights are repugnant to the provisions of the Act. 1928 Mad 1182 : 1928 M. W. N. 856 : 55 M. L. J. 551, F. B.

(2) Construction of documents.

Documents should be construed liberally.

—documents in this country should be construed liberally. 20 C. W. N. 210 : 22 C. L. J. 452, 22 L. L. J. 180 : 19 C. W. N. 873 : 18 M. L. T. 31, 37 A 269 P. C. 97 I. C. 124.

Construction of a document is a point of law.

—construction of a document is a point of law and there cannot be estoppel by reason of misrepresentation on a point of law unless the point of law is not clear and free from doubt. 30 C. 883 p. 894

Document must be construed as a whole.

—it is one of the cardinal principles of construction of a document that it must be construed as a whole. True intention of the parties should be ascertained from each provision which must receive attention. 32 C. W. N. 569 : 47 C. L. J. 183 : 1928 M. W. N. 91, 30 Bom. L. R. 261 : 26 A L J 488 : 107 I. C. 1 : 1928 P. C. 35.

—When each point by itself is not conclusive the document must be construed as a whole. 33 C. W. N. 578 : 1929 P. C. 115.

Each part should expound the other.

—the best construction of a deed is to make each part expound the other, so as to make all the parts agree. 63 I. C. 625.

Document when not self-contained.

—a document which is not absolute and self-contained must be read with and interpreted in the light of an established custom, if any. 63 I. C. 48.

When the description is conflicting.

—construction in case of conflicting description. 4 Pat. L. T. 652 : 72 I. C. 643

Same word should have same meaning.

—generally same meaning should be given to the same word used throughout a document unless there be some good reason justifying the attribution of different meanings. 95 I. C. 140.

—but the rule that the same meaning should be given to an expression in every part of a document in which it appears is of general application but is applicable only to cases of or difficulty in construing the document. 47 C. L. J. 295 : 107 I. C. 459 : 1928 P. C. 115.

When repugnant clauses are used.

—if there are two clauses or parts of a deed repugnant to each other, the first will be received and the latter rejected unless there is some special reason to the contrary but in all cases intention of the parties must be given effect to. 62 I. C. 491 (c).

—construction of a document containing contradictory recitals. 20 C. L. J. 312, 37 C. 393. 10 C. L. J. 370 : 13 M. L. T. 305 : 18 I. C. 973, 33 C. L. J. 186, and construction of two contradictory sections of an Act. 25 C. W. N. 9

Natural meaning should be adopted.

—an instrument should be construed according to its natural meaning in the light of the circumstances in which it was executed 1922 Cal. 300 : 68 I. C. 937.

—the natural and obvious meaning of the words in a deed cannot be refused to be given to them merely because it is suggested that the words have been inserted in the deed for the purpose of ascertaining and specifying the stamp duty in which case it should be specially stated. 38 C. L. J. 21 : 75 I. C. 402.

—if apt words are not used and if reservation are not made to contend that the interpretation of the giving effect to all the directions in it. 111 I. C. 22 : 1928 Mad. 349.

Where more than one interpretation is possible.

—where more than one interpretation of a deed is possible, it is proper and necessary to look to the statute by which the form and purposes of the instrument are prescribed and to fix upon that construction which is consistent with the statute. 33 M. L. T. 438 P. C.

—if it is possible to construe a document in two different ways the court may accept the construction which makes the document valid in law. 55 C. 448. 32 C. W. N. 248 : 105 I. C. 647 : 1928 Cal. 130.

Construction by another document.

—it is always dangerous to construe the words of one document by the construction put upon similar words in another document. All the clauses must be looked at and given effect to ignoring none as redundant or contradictory. 1 Pat. 295 : 1922 Pat. 70 : 2 Pat. L. T. 273 : 65 I. C. 977.

—it is not proper to construe one document in the view taken with regard to another document which is differently worded. 42 C. L. J. 172 : 1925 Cal. 1248, 86 I. C. 737 : 87 I. C. 758 : 1925 Mad. 1175, 112 I. C. 113 (c).

(2) Construction of documents—contd.

—the previous correspondence between the parties cannot be referred to for construing a document 93 I. C. 184 : 28 Bom. L. R. 25 : 1926 Bom. 209.

If contemporary document can be used to explain.

—statement contained in a contemporaneous document furnishes a legitimate aid to construction. Where there are two conflicting descriptions, that which is more certain and stable and the least likely to have been mistaken must prevail. 37 C. 393 : 10 C. L. J. 570 : 4 I. C. 713.

If subsequent document can be looked to.

—a subsequent deed between strangers should not be allowed to explain a document 37 C. 626 : 7 I. C. 875

Other document not in suit cannot be used —the language of other documents not in suit cannot be called in aid to construe the words of a particular document which is in suit. 29 C. W. N. 353 : 85 I. C. 693 : 1925 Cal. 656, 42 C. L. J. 172 : 1925 Cal. 1248 : 87 I. C. 758.

Surrounding circumstances can be considered.

—to determine the true construction of a deed of settlement regard must be had to the object and whole scope having reference to the surrounding circumstances. 32 C. L. J. 453, 28 Bom. L. R. 25 : 1926 Bom. 209 : 93 I. C. 184.

—evidence of surrounding circumstances are relevant. 40 C. L. J. 481 : 27 Bom. L. R. 4 : 47 M. 729 : 82 I. C. 993 P. C., 29 C. W. N. 57 : 26 Bom. L. R. 786 : 80 I. C. 807 : 48 M. 230 : 1924 M. W. N. 609, P. C.

—in considering whether a particular interpretation is beneficial or not to a party, circumstances not appearing on the face of the deed may be taken into account 1924 P. C. 233 : 20 L. W. 884 P. C.

Construction of a settlement deed.

—in construing a settlement deed the true rule is to find out the intention of the settlor from the expressions used in the deed itself and then to ascertain whether such intention is valid in law or not 55 C. 448, 32 C. W. N. 248 ; 105 I. C. 647 : 1928 Cal. 130.

—in construing a deed of settlement in India unless there is a special reason afforded by the deed itself to the contrary, the technical meaning given to the words in English law must be disregarded. 52 B. 176 : 30 Bom. L. R. 282 : 47 C. L. J. 198 : 32 C. W. N. 925 : 26 A. L. J. 560 : 1928 P. C. 33.

When intention of the parties can be looked to.

—where a document is not itself ambiguous the intention of the parties should not be taken into consideration and the mere delivery of a document of title does not constitute a transfer of the right to property. 42 C. L. J. 79 : 82 I. C. 411.

(2) Construction of documents—contd.

—in all cases the object is to see what is the intention of the parties expressed by the words used. But from the imperfection of language it is not possible to know what is the intention without inquiring further and seeing what the circumstances were with reference to which the words were used. 47 C. L. J. 300: 30 Bom. L. R. 760: 107 I. C. 346: 1927 P. C. 272.

—meaning of the words used should be looked to and not the intention of the parties to the deed. 7 C. L. J. 292.

—question is not so much of parties' intention as of meaning of words used. 49 B. 99: 84 I. C. 397: 1925 Bom. 12.

—but the intention of the parties should be looked to in construing a document containing repugnant words. 97 I. C. 580: 1926 Mad. 1208.

—the document must be construed as a whole and intention of the parties must be gathered from each provision which must receive attention. 1928 M. W. N. 91: 32 C. W. N. 569: 47 C. L. J. 183: 30 Bom. L. R. 261: 26 A. L. J. 488, 1928 P. C. 35.

—the intention must be gathered from the document itself and oral evidence is excluded. 45 A. 581: 21 A. L. J. 503: 1923 A. 586.

—for the right administration of justice the substance and the real meaning of the parties and not the form of expression and the literal sense of the transaction are to be constantly kept in view as the basis of decision. 34 C. L. J. 323.

—whether deed is a mortgage or not depends upon the intention of the parties to be gathered from the circumstances of the case. 64 I. C. 583.

—a document called a will is really a deed of gift if the intention is to make a transfer in praesenti. 74 I. C. 653.

When conduct of the parties can be looked to.

—conduct of the parties is evidence to construe a deed of doubtful import. 34 C. L. J. 129, 96 I. C. 188: 1926 Pat. 340: 1926 P. H. C. O. 199, or where the terms of a contract are ambiguous, 29 C. W. N. 166: 40 C. L. J. 322, 33 C. L. J. 332: 25 C. W. N. 308: 61 I. C. 818, 111 I. C. 701: 1928 All. 34.

—conduct of parties is relevant to explain a deed capable of several meanings. 29 C. W. N. 559: 1924 P. C. 88: 51 C. 374: 80 I. C. 1031: 46 M. L. J. 618 P. C.

—the conduct of the parties to a contract reduced into writing may not vary or alter it, but their conduct may help to explain or elucidate different meanings. 1924 P. C. 88.

—subsequent admission of meaning and conduct of the party cannot be relied in aid of construction: interpretation of ancient document is difficult. 12 C. L. J. 378.

—evidence of the acts and conducts of parties is inadmissible to show that document is not what it purports to be. 71 I. C. 1030 (c).

(2) Construction of documents—contd

—when the general words of an ancient grant is uncertain they may be fairly explained by subsequent usage 53 C. 533 : 30 C. W. N. 745 : 94 I. C. 974 : 24 A. L. J. 761 : 1926 : P. C. 41.

Construction does not depend upon name of the document.

—the true construction does not depend upon the name given to the document but it must be determined with reference to all its terms. 9 O. L. J. 104 : 1922 Oudb. 42 : 66 I. C. 110.

—but the name of the document by which the instrument is called by the maker must be borne in mind and should not lightly be brushed aside though it is not conclusive. 111 I. C. 22 : 1928 Mad. 349.

—a document named sale-deed under which in lieu of a debt due, land is sold for a period of 50 years, it is in reality a mortgage and can be redeemed even before that period. 76 I. C. 336.

—the mere fact that the document of title held by the grantees is called a patta and that they executed a kabulyat in similar terms is not conclusive of the question of whether they were made lease-holders i.e., farmers of revenue or were true proprietors paying a jamahandi to the overlord. 40 O. L. J. 473 : 48 B. 613 : 87 I. C. 779, 1924 M. W. N. 694 : 26 Bom. L. R. 1143 : 47 M. L. J. 574 P. C.

Substance shall be looked to and not the form.

—In determining whether an instrument is liable to duty as a transfer only or the full duty of a mortgage, the court will look at the substance of the transaction and not merely at the form of the instrument. 51 C. 185 : 28 C. W. N. 497 : 1924 Cal. 578 : 81 I. C. 471.

Nothing shall be considered redundant.

—no part of a document should so far as possible be left as redundant. 74 I. C. 63.

—common words of style used in conveyance of any sort may be and often are words of surplusage but when they are not words of surplusage they must be given the proper effect of their own meaning. The word "Adha" and "Urdha" in the settlement deed made it plain that there was every intention to convey all below the surface as well as on it or above it. 29 C. W. N. 725 : 86 I. C. 289 : 27 Bom. L. R. 753 : 20 A. L. J. 712 P. C.

—but while for the purpose of construing the operative part the whole of the instrument may be referred to, yet the recitals leading up to it are more likely to furnish the key to its construction than the subsidiary clauses of the deed. 3 Pat. L. T. 653 : 65 I. C. 882 P. C.

Gift or a will.

—where a Mahamedan lady executed a deed purporting to give away the whole of a zemindery estate, reserving usufruct of a haveli to herself and her heirs to pay the Revenue on and not a will. 27 C. W. N. 14 Bom. L. R. 1268 : 68 I. C. 1011.

(2) Construction of documents—contd.

—to ascertain whether a document is a will or gift the whole document and subsequent conduct is to be considered. 1925 Mad. 471; 86 I. C. 8.

—in construing a deed drawn by a layman in India whether it is will or a gift not only the words used should be considered but also the circumstances should be considered, 94 I. C. 967 (c).

—words which, when used in will or deed of gift, create hereditary interest, do not do so when used in grant or lease creating intermediate interest. 30 C. 20; 7 C. W. N. 314.

—where a document styled a will constitutes nothing more than a declaration of an intended adoption which was not carried out and the statements of the wishes of the executant thereafter, it is in the nature of a transaction inter vivos and if not registered it is not valid. 25 C. W. N. 511; 28 M. L. T. 190; 1920 M. W. N. 559; 58 I. C. 228 P. C.

—a document alleged to be a will and relied upon and established as a will in a Probate Court cannot be found not to be a will but a deed of gift, but the court may construe the will and hold that the executant had no power to execute it. 2 Pat. L. T. 728; 62 I. C. 611.

Construction of ancient document.

—an ancient document should not be construed in the light of present usage or modern understanding of law. 9 C. L. J. 475.

Instrument not drawn by professional men.

—instruments not drawn by professional men should be liberally construed, 12 C. W. N. 942, and not only the words actually used should be considered but also the circumstance should be taken into consideration and the matter ought to be broadly looked at. 94 I. C. 967 (c)

Construction of a surety bond.

—the terms of a surety bond should be construed favourably to the surety. 55 C. 91; 1918 Cal. 177; 109 I. C. 538.

General words or clauses apply to ejusdem generis

—the words "on any account whatsoever" in lease must be construed ejusdem generis with the preceding provisions. 5 I. C. 1022; 29 C. W. N. 124; 82 I. C. 315; 1925 Cal. 346.

—general words of release operates to pass only what the parties contemplated. 11 C. W. N. 776.

—where in a lease-deed the payments to be made are specifically dealt with and afterwards a general clause to the effect that whatever else is payable by law is to be paid, the general clause is taken to be referable to the subject matter specially referred to before. 79 I. C. 369 (c).

WORKMAN'S BREACH OF CONTRACT ACT

(Act XIII of 1859 as amended by Acts XVI of 1874 and XII of 1890.)

Scope and application of the Act.

—the Act does not apply when the contract was made at a place where the Act is not in force. 57 L. C. 194.

—the object of the Act is stated in the preamble to punish fraudulent breaches of contract as well as to enable a contractor to obtain a more speedy remedy than by recourse to the Civil Courts, which would ordinarily have jurisdiction so as to afford him relief. 21 C. 262.

—the Act provides an additional, not a substitutional remedy for fraudulent breaches of contract. 15 L. C. 996 : 13 Cr. L. J. 580. 5 Bur. L. T. 133 : 9 L. B. R. 89 F. B.

—the preamble to the Act sets out that it is intended to prevent the fraudulent breaches of contract. But although the "fraudulent" does not appear in the body of the Act the words "shall wilfully and without lawful or reasonable excuse, neglect or refuse

Scope and application of the Act—contd.

S. 1. (Complaint to M. if workman neglects to perform work for which he has received advance.)

Artificer, workman or labourer, meaning of.

—these words were properly used in the order in which they appear in order to indicate a descending scale from skilled to unskilled labour. A perusal of the preamble of the Act which was passed mainly in the interest of manufacturers, tradesmen and others goes to strengthen this impression. 41 M. 182; 23 M. L. J. 607; 22 M. L. T. 435; 43 I. C. 787.

—the word "workman" must be understood as connoting manual labour of some kind, whether skilled or unskilled, above case and 28 F. R. 1904 Cr. 1 Cr. L. J. 1103.

Who are not artificers, workmen or labourers.

—an actor in a theatrical company does not come under the sec, 1904 P. R. 28 Cr., so also a musician in a band, 38 M. 551, 64 I. C. 370 : 23 Cr. L. —a person who undertakes to supervise the work of coolies and agrees to the penalties under the Act is an 'artificer, workman, or labourer' under s. 1 of the Act. 1 Mys. L. J. 25.

—an elephant driver is a 'workman' within S. 1. He is not a domestic servant as that word implies doing something inside or near a house. He has normal duties in driving the elephant which bring him within the category of a workman or labourer. 91 I. C. 896; 1926 Bom. 80; 27 Bom. L. R. 1415; 27 Cr. L. J. 160.

Any master or employer resident or carrying on business.

—the Act is not applicable to a contract made with Govt. and the Secretary of State is not one of the persons who can resort to the Act as even when carrying on business he means to acquire profit not for himself but for the State which he represents, 3 L. —a person who is not an employer or master is a mere broker or middleman for the purpose of supplying labour to an employer or master and is not entitled to take proceedings as an employer against a workman under the Act. 14 Bom. L. R. 956; 17 I. C. 789; 13 Cr. L. J. 853.

Advance of money.

—gold and silver money given to an artificer as raw material wherewith he was to make an idol is an advance of money. 6 M. H. C. Ap. 24.

—an advance in the form of stores is not an advance of money. 1914 P. R. 23; 25 I. C. 515; 15 Cr. L. J. 603.

—an old debt is not an advance of money. 9 B. H. C. 171, 16 B. 368.

—when grain was advanced it must be proved that the labourers accepted the grain in lieu of money. 8 M. 294.

—smallness of the advance is no ground for not enforcing the performance of the contract. 40 A. 282.

—where a workman admits the advance and repays the same the M. cannot make him pay to the complainant the court-fee paid on the petition of complaint. 33 B. 22.

S. 2. (Magistrate may order repayment of advance or performance of contract)Wilfully and without lawful or reasonable excuse.

—the inference of the M. under the Act is limited to cases where the neglect or refusal to perform the work is wilful and without lawful and reasonable excuse and it is the duty of the court to consider whether any excuse averred is lawful and reasonable. 16 B. 368.

—the expression "without lawful or reasonable excuse" has reference to the circumstances in which the breach occurred. 11 M. 332.

—these are for all practical purposes equivalent to the expression fraudulent breach of contract mentioned in the preamble. 36 C. 917.

—where the non-performance of the contract is due to the difference between the parties as to their respective liabilities it cannot be said to be perverse or wilful neglect or refusal within the meaning of the section. 2 Bom. L. R. 801.

—where the contract is wilfully broken it must be proved that it was broken without lawful or reasonable excuse. This circumstance only gives the employer right to proceed under this sec. 21 Bom. L. R. 1090 : 52 I. C. 593 : 20 Cr. L. J. 673

—a workman who had paid up in full the penalty which his master or employer has agreed beforehand to accept as compensation for any breach of the contract had a lawful and reasonable excuse for refusing to continue to perform his work according to the terms of the contract. 41 A. 890 : 51 I. —an order directing the payment of compensation is illegal. 4 M. H. C. R. Ap. 67.

If such artificer, workman or labourer shall fail to comply with an order.

—the offence created by these and the succeeding words is not the refusal or neglect of a workman to perform his contract.

S. 2. If such artificer, workman or labourer shall fail to comply with an order—confd.

—if the complainant has completed the work before the complaint the workman cannot be punished under this sec. 28 M. 37 F. B.

—before sentencing to imprisonment there ought to be a complaint of disobedience and the statement of the accused must be taken. 5 M. 376, 4 B. H. C. G. R. 37, 14 I. C. 194; 1912 P. R. 5.

—an order directing the accused to refund or work and in case of failure, to suffer imprisonment, is illegal as to the last portion. 35 C. 1035, 6 M. H. C. Ap. 24, 18 C. W. N. 1271, 26 I. C. 145, 42 I. C. 600 (Bur.) because the language of sec. 2 shows that a Magistrate cannot order the workman to be imprisoned by the same order by which he directed him to make a payment and the order about imprisonment should be a separate one passed after the workman has failed to reply. 99 I. C. 55; 28 Cr. L. J. 23; 1927 Lab. 62.

Effect of imprisonment.

—effect of imprisonment is not a bar to civil suit for recovery of the money advanced. 2 M. H. C. 427.

—a conviction for breach is a bar to any subsequent conviction on the same contract for a further breach for not returning to service. 21 C. 262

Procedure

—an offence under s. 2 is triable by a second class Magistrate. 1924 All. 616.

—it is doubtful whether a proceeding under the first clause of sec. 2 and s. 3 is a criminal proceeding. There is no offence committed and there is no accused, hence a M. is not bound to frame his record as required by sec. 370 Cr. P. C. 27 C. 131; 4 C. W. N. 201, 4 C. W. N. 253, 4 M. 234, 7 S. L. Where cattle were driven across a Railway line at a place where there was no fence, there was no likelihood of damage and no offence was committed. 1930 Oudh. 250; 126 I. C. 497; 31 Cr. L. J. 1015; 1930 Cr. C. 570; 7 O. W. N. 461.

—a person who removes cattle from a pound where they are secured without paying the legitimate fee has the dishonest intention of saving himself the fee and is liable to be convicted under this sec and sec. 380 of the I. P. C. But conviction under both the provisions cannot be upheld. 1931 Mad. 18; 1931 Cr. C. 32; 1930 M. W. N. 529; 129 I. C. 451.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

—in the definition of proof in the Evidence Act no distinction is drawn between circumstantial and other evidence. In every case the Court should consider the whole matter before the court and proceed with prudence before acting on probabilities. 1931 Lah. 529; 133 I. C. 446; 32 Cr. L. J. 1032; 32 P. L. R. 461; 1931 Cr. C. 769; 1 I. R. 1931 Lah. 782.

—the mere fact that the accused absconded is in itself of little importance in a case where the evidence is worthless and consists of very little, of anything, beyond the fact that the accused absconded. 1931 Lah. 38; 130 I. C. 410; 32 Cr. L. J. 522; 32 P. L. R. 259; 1931 Cr. C. 102.

—the principle to be followed in criminal cases based on circumstantial evidence are as follows: (1) the circumstances from which an inference adverse to the accused is sought to be drawn must be proved beyond all reasonable doubt and must be closely connected with the fact sought to be inferred therefrom: (2) in order to justify an inference of guilt the circumstances from which such an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of guilt. 52 C. L. J. 417; 1931 Cal. 11; 129 I. C. 677; 35 O. W. N. 169; 32 Cr. L. J. 418; 1931 Cr. C. 43.

CONFESSION.

—confession is a 30 Evl. Act means confession of the offence for which the accused are being tried. It cannot reasonably be interpreted to mean confession of any offence in the world. 54 M. 75, 59 M. L. J. 47; 129 I. C. 645; 1930 M. W. N. 858; I. R. 1931 Mad. 309, 59 M. L. J. 471, 1931 Mad 177.

—the proper recording of confession which can be shown on the face of them to be voluntary and apparently true is of the highest and supreme importance in a criminal case. 1930 Oudh 449; 1930 Cr. C. 1073; 32 Cr. L. J. 97, 7 O. W. N. 909; 128 I. C. 215; 6 Luck 335.

—a 30 Evl. Act creates an exception to the fundamental principles of the criminal law and must be strictly construed in favour of the accused. 54 M. 783; 61 M. L. J. 358; I. R. 1930 Mad 815, 134 I. C. 63; 1931 M. W. N. 886; 1931 Mad 820, 32 Cr. L. J. 1099.

—confession implicating a co-accused requires corroboration if the co-accused is to be convicted on it. 1930 Pat. 385; 123 I. C. 393; I. R. 1930 Pat. 313; 31 Cr. L. J. 492; 1930 Cr. C. 767.

—where there is no other evidence to show affirmatively that any portion of the exculpatory statement in the confession is false, the court must accept or reject the confession as a whole and cannot except only the inculpatory element as inherently incredible. 52 All. 1011; 1930 All. 1; 129 I. C. 258; 32 Cr. L. J. 362; 1930 A. L. J. 1481; 1931 Cr. C. 1; I. R. 1931 All. 130 F. B.

—the court has discretion to exclude a confession by an accused altogether from consideration against the co-accused if it is so disposed. 26 N. L. R. 229; 1930 Cr. C. 818; 125 I. C. 673; 31 Cr. L. J. 831; I. R. 1930 Nag 321; 1930 Nag 242 F. B.

—the statement of an accused person under s. 342 Cr. P. C. by which he implicates the co-accused is admissible in evidence in the trial of the co-accused by virtue of s. 30 Evl. Act but its value depends upon the circumstance of the case. 54 B. 531; 127 I. C. 105; 1930 Cr. C. 786; 32 Bom. L. R. 747; 31 Cr. L. J. 1137; I. R. 1930 Bom. 489; 1930 Bom 351.

COPYRIGHT ACT (111 of 1914).S. 3

—if a copyright is shown to have subsided when Act 111 of 1914 came into force, the period of copyright substituted by that Act would be 50 years from the death of the author. When the complaint for infringement of copyright is made after the new Act comes into force the question is whether the copyright is subsisting under the new Act and not whether it was subsisting under the old Act XX of 1847. 1931 All. 353: I. —whether there has been an infringement of copyright or not depends on whether a colourable imitation has been made. Whether a work is a colourable imitation of the plaintiff's work is a question of fact. Further, the plaintiff must show that the defendant's work is not enough. A mere coincidence is not enough. 540: 126 I. C. 197: 1931 Cal. 233.

Similarly when the order is addressed to “A and B and all other persons who may be concerned in the project” it is bad against persons not named but the order may be nevertheless a good one against A and B. 55 B. 322; 1931 Bom. 135; 130 I. C. 396; 1931 Cr. C. 183; 32 Cr. L. J. 507; I. R. 1931 Bom. 252; 33 Bom. L. R. 59.

Sub-Sec. (3)

—in formulating an order under a 144 the M. is to show the thing which is prohibited and the persons who are prohibited. Consequently an order addressed to "any other persons who are or may be concerned in the project" is too vague and illegal. 55 B. 322; 1931 Bom. 135; 32 Cr. L. J. 507; I. R. 1931 Bom. 252; 130 I. —this sub-sec. is an exception to the general rule that an order shall be directed to a particular person. Under that provision the order can be directed to the public generally only "when frequenting or visiting a particular place" such for instance as a market or park or other place within a specified boundary. There is no power to direct the public generally simpliciter. An order prohibiting the public generally and certain persons named in the order from taking part in the procession within the whole of the Municipal Limits is bad in law. 33 Bom. L. R. 1178; 1931 Bom. 513; 1931 Cr. C. 945; 134 I. C. 1237.

—no order can be passed against the public without the limitation as to place. The place must be open to the public as such. The public cannot be prohibited from putting up flags in their private houses and in such a case the house-owners cannot be called members of the public for the purpose of this sec. (1930) 17 M. W. —this sec. requires that there must be a present dispute and a likelihood of the breach of the peace, i. e., there must be present fear that it is probable that there will be breach of the peace owing to the dispute if no proceedings are initiated. This does not mean that orders under the sec. are to be made when some body comes and says that he fears that a breach of the peace will ensue a considerable time ahead. The sec. applies when there is existing fear that unless steps are taken under this sec. a breach of the peace will occur before the authorities responsible for law and order can prevent it. 35 C. W. N. 1003.

—the words "a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace concerning any land or water or the boundaries thereof" do not limit the competency of the Magistrate to deal under ss. 145 and 146 with such disputes only as arise between two opposing parties having adverse rights to exclusive possession 32 Bom. It cannot bar the granting of restitution by a civil Court under s. 144 Civil Pr. Code. A suit for regaining possession by the opposite party is not always necessary and restitution validly made by a Court can be regarded as eviction in due course of law. 58 C. 1070; 35 C. W. —"First information" or "first information report" is not mentioned in the Code, but these words are always used to mean information recorded under this sec. The conditions as to the record of the information under this sec. are: (1) it must be an information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence; (2) it must be given to an officer-in-charge of a police station; (3) it must be put in writing and if already written, it must be signed by the person giving it, and if it is oral it must be taken down in writing and read over to the informant; (4) the substance of the information shall be entered in a book. The information which starts the investigation is the real first information; it does not depend on the sweet will of the police officer who may or may not have recorded it. It cannot be said that any sort of information would fall under s. 154 so long as it was the first in point of time. In a suitable case information under s. 154 may be recorded even in the course of investigation by a police officer; on a construction of the two statements made to the police in the present case it was held that the last statement alone related to a cognizable offence and it was that statement which would be treated as the first information report 58 C. 1312; 35 C. —the provisions of s. 162 have been enacted for the benefit of the accused. The policy underlying the rule contained in the sec. is that the witness at the trial should be free to make any statements in favour of the accused, which they should wish to make, unhampered by anything which they might have said or might have been made to say to the police. The result of witness's signature having been obtained on their statements reduced into writing would be to tie them down to the statements so recorded at any rate to give them the impression that they were not free to make a different statement. Where therefore the Police Officer obtains the signature of the witnesses to statements made by them in contravention of s. 162, the evidence of such witness must be rejected, because it is not a mere irregularity which can be covered by s. 537 but a clear illegality being a direct breach of mandatory provision of law. 1931 Oudh 172 : 132 I. —when it is desired to direct the matter before the Sessions Judge and the Jury and show in an affirmative manner that the witnesses for the prosecution cannot be relied on it is the duty of the defence to prove through the investigating officer the record of the statements made to the Police by the witnesses for the prosecution during the stage of investigation. 35 C. ARMS ACT (XI OF 1878).

—loose parts of revolver in rusty condition but which may be used if cleaned and oiled are "arms." 37 C. W. N. 234.

S. 14.

—license or exemption not granted under the Act or Rules are invalid and does not protect the accused. 1932 Rang. 180; 1932 Cr. C. 815.

—the word "extent" cannot be limited to mean territorial extent. Possession of unlicensed arms is punishable under s. 19 read with sec. 14. 60 C. 445; 37 C. W. N. 93; 34 Cr. L. J. 363; 1933 Cal. 218; 1933 Cr. C. 299; 1 R. 1933 Cal. 301; 142 I. C. 522.

—s. 14 prohibits an unlicensed person from going armed with any kind of arms. To be in possession or control of arms other than those mentioned in sec. 14 is not an offence, though it is an offence to go armed with those as provided in s. 13. 1933 Cal. 692; 1913 Cr. C. 1154.

—all the members of a joint Hindu family are liable for the possession of an unlicensed gun and they may all be tried on the charge. 54 A. 411; 139 I. C. 153; 33 Cr. L. J. 719; 1932 A. L. J. 570; 1 R. 1932 All. 535; 1932 All. 441; 1932 Cr. C. 561.

—mere negotiations for sale to a person who has no license is not in itself an offence; an offence under cl. (a) is committed only if the weapon is actually delivered to a person who has no license. 60 C. 445; 37 C. W. N. 93; 1933 Cr. C. 299; 1933 Cal. 218; 34 Cr. L. J. 363; 1 R. 1933 Cal. 301.

—the possession of arms of which a licensee has not been renewed is punishable under s. 19 (f). Above case.

—conviction under this sec. requires the possession of some particular person over that article. The head of the family cannot be committed merely on the ground that some loaded cartridges were found in the grain bin of the house. 1933 All. 112; A. I. R. 1933 All. 195; 1932 A. L. J. 1072; 1933 Cr. C. 160; 1932 A. L. J. 570 Diss. from.

—knowledge of possession of arms by associate is not punishable. 37 C. W. N. 201; 1933 Cal. 132; 34 Cr. L. J. 299; 142; I. C. 280; 1 R. 1933 Cal. 246.

—where a person in unlicensed possession of a revolver and cartridges gave the revolver to some one else to conceal it and the possession of the revolver was in some way connected with the political opinions of the accused, the accused was liable to be convicted under s. 20. 37 C. W. N. 195; 1933 Cr. C. 140; 1933 Cal. 124.

S. 20—contd.

—what constitutes possession of arms: 37 C. W. N. 509.

—the mere possession of an unlicensed gun is punishable under s. 19 (f) but where there is indication of an intention that the possession may not be known to the police the offence is punishable under s. 20. 60 C. 545.

—this sec. is not restricted to cases of exportation and importation of arms in bulk but applies also to ordinary cases of carrying or possessing arms. 1933 Cal. 692; 1933 Cr. C. 1154.

—where the accused who had a revolver in his possession attempted to run away when the notice came, his intention was that his possession of the revolver might not be known to the police and he was guilty under s. 19 (f) read with s. 20. 1933 All. 627; 1933 Cr. C. 1006.

S. 27.

—the publication printed by the Government of India Press in 1923 entitling it as "Arms Act" and described inter alia as "a brief explanation of the Arms Act" is not a notification within this Act. 1932 Rang. 180; 1932 Cr. C. 815.

BAR COUNCILS ACT (XXXVIII OF 1926).

S. 10.

—an advocate deliberately imputation against a judicial officer in an execution case to which he was punished under the Bar Councils Act. 773 Sp. S.

—where a pleader in his capacity as a suitor in the S. C. C. Court, made a grossly improper remark reflecting upon the Judges of the H. C. without the slightest justification and was fined Rs. 75 for contempt of Court, held that fine was not sufficient and that he should be suspended from practice. 1933 All. 224; 1933 Cr. C. 385; 1933 A. L. J. 251.

—the Court would not be justified in dismissing a petition summarily unless it is satisfied that even if the allegations made in the petition be proved, there would be no case for taking action. 1932 Bom. 199; I. R. 1932 Bom. 401; 138 I. C. 543; 34 Bom. L. R. 443; 1932 Cr. C. 303.

BENGAL CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ACT.

(Act of 1925, as amended by Acts of 1930 and 1931)

S. 2.

—the trial under the Act is not a trial under the Criminal Procedure Code, it is trial before a Special Tribunal. If one of the commissioners does not agree with the others he cannot write a separate judgment of his own. I. R. 1932 Cal. 673; 33 Cr. L. J. 837; 140 I. C. 80 F. B.

—a reference under s. 3 (2) of the Supplementary Act of 1925 to the High Court is not invalid merely because it was made by Deputy Magistrate and not by the trying Commissioners. I. R. 1932 Cal. 673 : 33 Cr. L. J. 837 : 140 I. C. 80 F. B.

—Act VI of 1930 does not affect or contravene either the Habeas Corpus Act or the Bill of Rights of the Government of India Act, and consequently is not ultra vires. The onus of proving that the petitioner does not belong to the class of persons to whom the Act applies is on the petitioner. 36 C. W. N. 1088 : 1932 Cr. C. 796 : 1932 Cal. 753.

—under this Act the only test to be applied is whether in the opinion of the Local Government there are reasonable grounds for believing certain things about a person. When the H. C. can inquire into the question, 36 C. W. N. 1088 : 1932 Cal. 753 : 1932 Cr. C. 796 —Act IX of 1931 is not ultra vires of the powers of the local legislature 59 C. 1440 : 1932 Cal. 470 : 138 I. C. 358 : I. R. 1932 Cal. 455 : 33 Cr. L. J. 609 : 36 C. W. N. 669 : 1932 Cr. C. 460.

—under the Act the opinion of the Local Government whether or not there were reasonable grounds for making an order of detention under s. 2, should be conclusive, the Court cannot go behind the order of detention. Above case.

BENGAL EMERGENCY POWERS ORDINANCE.

(XI of 1931)

—when a special Magistrate passes a sentence of imprisonment for only four years and not more, no appeal lies to the High Court even though no Special Tribunal has been constituted. 59 C. 1248 : 1932 Cal. 867 : 1932 Cr. C. 891.

—direction by the M. for trial to begin under the Act on a particular day does not amount to a trial before any Court. 57 C. L. J. 57

—the commitment stage is not included in the phrase "for which he was tried at the promulgation of the Ordinance." Trials begun after the Ordinance are not put in the same position as trials mentioned in the opening language of sec. 34. 37 C. W. N. 312 : 1933 Cal. 354 : 1933 Cr. C. 490.

—sec. 5 Limitation Act is 'not applicable to appeals from Special Magistrates under s. 39 of Ordinance 11 of 1932. The provision as to Limitation contained in sec. 39 (2) of the Ordinance is a specific provision. 37 C. W. N. 195 : 1933 Cal. 124 : 1933 Cr. C. 140.

—sec. 39 does not modify the powers of Superintendence conferred on the H. C. by sec. 107 of the Govt. of India Act. 1933 Cal. 132 : 37 C. W. N. 201 : 142 I. C. 280 : I. R. 1933 Cal. 246 : 34 Cr. L. J. 299.

—s. 51 does not authorise a M. to have the case tried by another M. 37 C. W. N. 195 : 1933 Cr. C. 140 : 1933 Cal. 124.

—where a person is convicted under the ordinance his continued detention after the expiry of the term of the Ordinance is illegal. 60 C. 545.

MISCELLANEOUS CASES—GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Absence of accused, propriety of trial.

—it is an essential principle of English criminal law that the indictable offences must be tried in the presence of the accused and for this purpose "trial" means the whole of the proceedings including sentence. In cases of misdemeanour there may be special circumstances which permit a trial in the absence of the accused ; but in trials for felony the rule is inviolable unless possibly the violent conduct of the accused himself intended to make trial impossible renders it lawful to continue in his absence. 1933 P. C. 218 : 34 Cr. L. J. 886 : 145 I. C. 209 : 1933 A. L. J. 1025 P. C.

Appeal

Benefit of doubt.

—when a set of circumstantial evidence is capable of two constructions, one in favour of the accused and one against him the —mistakes in recounting of facts is disastrous in criminal cases. 1932 Lah. 243 : I. R. 1932 Lah. 291 : 33 Cr. L. J. 411 : 1932 Cr. C. 255 : 137 I. C. 59.

—it is not the duty of a judge to find any and every reason possible and any and every argument to whittle away the significance and the defects of the prosecution. 1931 All. 609 : 133 I. C. 593 : I. R. 1931 All. 705 : 32 Cr. L. J. 1052 : 1931 A. L. J. 1000.

—the Court is to determine an issue upon the material before it and a litigant cannot be allowed to arrogate to himself the right to decide it. 1931 Lah. 473 : 32 Cr. L. J. 909 : 1931 Cr. C. 697 : 32 P. L. R. 498 : 12 Lah. 623 : I. R. 1931 Lah. 611.

—if the prosecution story is found to be false the Court can by all means do the best in view of the available evidence to arrive at some theory as to what has actually happened. But where the story is found to be untrue in its fundamental aspects the Court will not construct any theory and will acquit the accused. 1931 Pat. 516 : I. R. 1931 Pat. 216 : 131 I. C. 536 : 32 Cr. L. J. 736.

—where a prisoner complains to a Court that he is not treated in accordance with the jail rules the Court has jurisdiction to inquire into such a complaint and pass necessary orders. 1931 Lah. 562 : I. R. 1931 Lah. 731 : 133 I. C. 59 : 32 Cr. L. J. 988.

Duty of prosecution.

—the prosecution must succeed on the strength of its own defence. 54 M. 931 : 1931 Mad. 929 : 134 I. C. 1143.

—that every eye-witness ought to be examined. 5 B. 434 : 1932 Bom. 279 : 1932 Cr. C. 503 : 33 Cr. L. J. 613.

—unless all the material witnesses are called the defence is deprived of opportunities of eliciting from the absent witnesses facts that may discredit the prosecution case, and if the failure to examine any of them is known to have prejudiced the accused, the Court may direct a retrial. 59 C. 1361 : 55 C. —it is the duty of the prosecution to place before the Court, specially in a case of murder, all the available evidence which is likely to throw any light upon the crime. 137 I. C. 691 : 1932 Lah. 500 : 1932 Cr. C. 664 : 32 Cr. L. J. 497 : I. R. 1932 Lah. 347.

—witnesses named in the first information report need not be examined by the prosecution. Nor does it give rise to any presumption under s. 114 (g) of the Evl. Act. Inquest report.

—where in a case of murder the confessional statements of the accused are relied on the defence can rely on the inquest report which states that the police officer could not at that time ascertain who committed the murder. The defence can also cross-examine persons who depose as to the confessions and can rely on the inquest report and is entitled to a copy of the inquest report, 37 C. W. N. 732.

Interview.

—the fact that the accused had an interview with his relations is no ground for rejecting a later application by him to interview his counsel. 1931 Lah. 99 : 1931 Cr. C. 163 : 12 Lah. 435 : 32 Punj L. R. 1

Jury trial.

—when the judge in his charge to the jury did not give any direction as to the onus of proof or benefit of doubt and it could not be said in the case that, if properly directed, the jury must have returned the same verdict, there was misdirection vitiating the trial. 1933 P. Proof of guilt.

—a person cannot be convicted merely because the defence story is false though on the question of guilty knowledge the conduct of the accused at the time may be absolutely of the first importance 37 C. W. N. 426

—in every case the onus lies on the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused, and the accused is not to prove innocence 37 C. W. N. 368.

Sentence.

—whether fine is severe or not depends on the position and status of the person fined. 1931 Cal. 633 : 1931 Cr. C. 833 : 134 I. C. 1129.

—a breach of the peace even if it involves an assault on a public officer of a mild character, unless there be some elements of criminality in it, should not ordinarily be punished by sentences of imprisonment. 1933 Pat. 342 : 12 Pat.
